INTRODUCTION

ISL 121: Studies on the Hadith – is a three credit units compulsory course for the first year degree students of Islamic Studies at the National Open University of Nigeria. This course gives the reader a general introduction to the studies of Hadith as well as a clear picture of the lives and works of the Collectors of the six most popular and more reliable Hadith collections (aṣ-Ṣīhāhu ʿs-Sittah) known as Ṣahīh Bukhārī, Ṣahīh Muslim, Sunan Abu Daud, Jāmiʿu Tirmīdī, Sunan aʿn-Nasāî and Sunan Ibn Mājah. Readers will also be acquainted with the life and contribution of six other important scholars of Hadith in person of Imam Mālik, Imam Hanbalī, Imam Yahya an-Nawawī, al-Suyutī, al-Asqalānī and al-Albānī.

Course Aims and Objectives

The main aim of this course is to facilitate knowledge of the Hadith, its place as the second primary source of Islamic law, major collectors and commentators of Hadith. To achieve this, you will be reminded of topics you have come across earlier on such:

(i) The meaning of Hadīth
(ii) Hadīth collection during and after the life time of the Prophet Muhammad (Ṣ).
(iii) The lives and contribution of Muhaddithūn like Imams Bukhārī, Muslim, Abu Dawud, aʿt-Tirmīdī, aʿn-Nasāī and Ibn Mājah to the Hadīth literature. as Hadīth collectors.

Course Objectives

The course has thirteen units each of which has its instructional objectives. You are expected to read the objectives of each unit and bear them in mind as you go through the unit. Nevertheless, the following are overall objectives of the course. After readers have gone through the whole course he/she should be able to:
• Define Hadīth and identifies its difference with Sunnah.
• Explain the collection of Hadīth during and after the life of the Prophet.
• Explain the place of as the second primary source of Islamic law

• Discuss the life and Hadīth collections of the six most prominent Muhaddithūn; viz. Bukhārī, Muslim, Abu Dawud, Tirmidhī, and a`n-Nasāī and Ibn Mājah.
• Give vivid account of the biography and Hadīth works of Imams Mālik, Hanbalī, a`n-Nawawī, al- Asqalānī, a`Suyūtī and al-Albānī.

Working through This Course

There are thirteen units in the course which you are expected to work through without leaving one untouched.

Course Materials

Major components of the course are:
1. A Course Guide
2. Study Units
3. Textbooks
4. Assignments File
5. Presentation Schedule

Study Units

There are eighteen units (of four modules) in this course. These are listed thus:

MODULE 1: Introduction to Hadith

Unit 1: Definition, origin compilation and standardization of Hadith
Unit 2: Hadith and Sunnah
Unit 3: Asma`u Rijal and the classification of Hadith
Unit 4: The role of Hadith and the position of the Orientalists
Unit 5: The teachings of Hadith and the early Hadith Literatures

MODULE 2: Imams Bukhārī, Muslim, Abu Dawud, and Tirmidhī: Their Hadīth Collections and Commentaries.
Unit 1: Introductory Unit.
Unit 2: A Biography and Hadīth Collection of Imam Bukhārī and its Commentary.
Unit 3: A Biography and Hadīth Collection of Imam Muslim and its Commentary.

Unit 4: The Life and Hadīth Collection of Imam Abu Daud and its Commentary.
Unit 5: The Profile and Hadīth Collection of Imam Tirmidhī and its Commentary.

MODULE 3: Imams A`n-Nasāī, Mālik and Ibn Hanbal: Their Hadīth Collections and Commentaries.
Unit 1: The Profile and Hadīth Collection of Imam Nasṣāī and its Commentary.
Unit 2: The life and Hadīth Collection of Imam Ibn Mājah and its Commentary
Unit 3: The Biography and Contribution of Imam Mālik to the Science of Hadīth.
Unit 4: The Biography and Contribution of Imam Ibn Hanbalī to the Science of Hadīth.

MODULE 4: Imams Nawawī, Suyūtī, Asqalānī and Albānī: Their Hadīth Collections and Commentaries.
Unit 1: Imam Yahya a`n-Nawawī and his contribution to Hadīth literature
Unit 2: Jalalu Dīn a`s-Suyūtī and his contribution to the development of Hadīth literature
Unit 3: Ibn Hajar al-Asqalānī and his works on Hadīth literature
Unit 4: The contribution of Imam al-Albānī to the Hadīth literature.

The Assessment File
Your assessment will be based on Self Assessment Exercises (SAEs), Tutor-marked Assignments (TMAs) and a Final Written Examination at the end of the course.

The Self Assessment Exercises
Though your answers to these Self Assessment Exercises questions do not add a credit to your overall grade in the course, it is advisable that you attempt all of them yourself as it serves as a demonstration of the level of understanding you are achieving as you go through the content.

The Presentation Schedule

The Presentation Schedule included in your course materials gives you the important dates for the completion of tutor-marked assignments and attending tutorials. Remember, you are required to submit all your assignment by the due date. You should guard against falling behind in your work.

Summary

In this Course Guide, we have provided you a general overview of ISL121: Studies on the Hadith in which students pursuing Degree in Arabic and Islamic Studies programme must earn three credit Units. The Course Aims and Objectives and what learners will gain working through the Course Material and its Study Units are stated clearly at the onset. We have also provided you a list of textbooks and references for your further reading. As an inference in the Guide, to develop an active interest in the Course is a prerequisite for its successful completion. Assess yourself through the Self Assessment Exercises (SAEs). You will equally be assessed for grading purposes through the Tutor-Marked Assignments (TMAs). Thus to do well- in the course, you must get yourself organized and try to conform to the presentation schedule.

We wish you best of luck and success in the course.

The second source of guidance in Islam after the Qur’an is the Hadith. In this course, you would learn about this important source. For a proper understanding of Islam, and for a Muslims practice of the religion, the knowledge of Hadith is a necessity. This course will, therefore introduce you to the study and its content.
2.0 OBJECTIVES

At the end of this course, you should be able to:

- Understand the meaning of Hadith
- Explain the term Hadith in relation to the study of Islam.

3.0 MAIN CONTENT

3.1 Meaning and scope of Hadith

The term Hadith refers to the Prophet’s sayings, doings, practice and explicit or implicit approval of the words or deeds of anyone else. The word is from the Arabic Verb Hadith, meaning ‘to inform’ or ‘to report’. In technical language, Hadith refers to the reports, statements, acts and approvals of the companions of Prophet Muhammad and their immediate successors.

Hadith is of historical importance, being the statements and accounts given by eye-witnesses and active participants in the events. According to Muhammad Mohar Ali; these reports of events are so vivid and detailed that there should be no question as to their authenticity.

For example when Suraqah Ibn. Malik Ibn. Ju'shum gives his own account of how, being lured by the Quraysh’s declaration of a price of one hundred camels on the head of the prophet, he went in pursuit of the latter, being well equipped with his lance and arrows and riding on his swift horse, and how he was miraculously incapacitated to doing any harm to the Prophet, and was obliged to come back unsuccessful in his purpose, there is no reason to doubt those accounts.

Hadith therefore, is a combination of valid report and statements credited to Prophet Muhammad by those who lived with him. So after the Qur’an a Muslim in turns to Hadith on matters affecting every facet of his or her life.

The Hadith of the prophet covers all aspects of human life such as the spiritual, economic, political, social, and even matrimonial. This was why the Hadith is next to the Qur’an in terms of references and guidance for the Muslims. In addition, Hadith covers the judicial aspect of the life of a Muslim. Today, judges and others who enforce the Laws of Allah rely on the model of Hadith for such implementation.

Another area of coverage of the Hadith is in the administration of inheritance of wealth of deceased Muslims, the settlement of marriage squabbles, divorce as well as paternity of the child. It also covers areas of Islamic activities such as naming of a child, the burial rites as well as settlement of disputes between two communities.

The Hadith covers a wide range of issues among Muslims. No wonder, therefore that many scholars in Islam rely on the Hadith of the Prophet to break up their claims on multifarious issues.

Origin of Hadith

After the death of the Prophet, the companions and followers became all the more careful to remember and act upon his statements and directives. Many of them kept written notes of such statements and utterances of the Prophet. They have read in the Qur’an that whatever the Prophet instructs you, do it, and whatever he admonishes you against, shun it. They therefore started keeping those valuable statements so that they could attain the pleasure of Allah.

When the Prophet was alive, many questions on worship and other related issues on Islam were put to him. He will, immediately respond or ask such questioner to come back if he has no immediate guidance from Allah on the issue. But with his death, such opportunity was lost, and Muslims had to rely on the reports of those who were witnesses to the prophetic statement. This was the beginning of the birth of Hadith as a second instrument to guide the Muslims in the day-to-day practice of Islam.
Collection and compilation of Hadith

The writing down of the sayings of the Prophet which later became the Hadith was the works of his close companions (Sahabah) and the close companions that followed them (tabi’un). These companions were so keen in taking notes of the prophets’ utterances that he once observed and had to ask them not to do so. The fear of the prophet was that this could lead to mixture of the Prophetic statements with the text of the Qur’an.

One known companion of the prophets named ‘Urwal Ibn. Zubayr started the compilation of sayings of the prophet. According Ali (p.10), this companion became popular for this effort. A lot of first hand information about Islam was obtained from him. A large number of Urwa’s report became documents for many companions through his son Hisham and Ibn Shihab.

Of all the students of al-Zuhri, a great early compiler of Hadith, Muhammad ibn. Is’haq ibn, Tasar is rated the highest. This was principally because of his Hadith compilation known as Kitab at maghazi. This book consists of very useful Hadith material in its complete form. This was made possible through the efforts of ibn. Hisham (d.218H).

Ibn. Is’haq’s grandfather, Yasar was a Christian Arab, while his father, Is’haq was zealous collector of Hadith. Ibn Is’haq also received his knowledge from Asim Ibn, Umar ibn, Qatada and Abdullah ibn, Abubakr. He later acquired more knowledge from Egypt and Iraq.

We should note that the period when literary in Hadith started flourishing was that of Khalifah Abu Jafar at Mansur. This was the time ibn. Is’haq secured patronage and wrote a book on Hadith for the Khalifah though not on an official capacity. Ibn Hisham later edited the work of Ibn Is’haq and this was later titled Sirat at Nabawiyyah, which was based on the copy of the work he received from Ibn.Is’haq’s immediate student, at Bukka’I (d.183 H).

Unfortunately, in spite of the general acceptability of the work of Ibn. Is’haq, the virtue of his work is somewhat compromised by the fact that some of his notable contemporaries like Malik ibn. Anas and Hisham Ibn. Urwah questioned its credibility. Ibn. Is’haq himself acknowledged that he received information from the Jews, Christians, Persians and incorporated their traditions and accounts in his work. This was why he usually insert the expression ‘F’ ma ya z’umuna (as they think) in his work.
Other younger contemporaries of ibn. Is’haq who also took part in the early compilation of works on Hadith include Abu Ma’shar (Najih Ibn. Abd-al—Rahmam al- Sindi, d.170H) who wrote and also tilled his work Kitab at Maghazi. Mention should also be made of Yahya Ibn Wahb (125-167H) as well Abd -ar Razzaq Ibn Hamam (126-211). All these scholars acknowledge the pre-eminent position of Ibn Is'haq.

Another early compiler of the Hadith was Abubakr Ibn Muhammed Ibr. Amr Ibn Hazm. His grandfather, Amr Ibn Hazm, was appointed governor by the prophet Muhammad and was instructed to teach Islam to the people. He trained and encouraged his son Abd’ Allah to specialize in collecting and preserving hadith.

By the last quarter of the first century of Hijrah, the collection, preservation and study of Hadith had begun. But this was limited only to the initiative of individual scholars and experts. Such collections were kept in the state.

The personality of the Prophet was a major factor in the Hadith collection. This was because the Qur’an in many passages extolled the personality of this noble Prophet and why his sayings and traditions should form the basis of the life patterns of Muslims. Following are some of such passages:

Say: If your fathers, your sons, your brothers, your wives, your kindred, the wealth that you have gain , the commerce in which you fair declined, and the dwelling in which you delight are dearer to you than Allah and his messenger, and striving in his course, then wait until Allah brings about His decision. (Qur’an 924)

O you who believe, obey Allah and obey the Messenger Qur’an 4 verse 59)

Say: If you really love Allah, follow me, Allah will love you and forgive your sins.
(Qur’an 3:31)

From the verses above it is clear that the life of the Prophet as well as his personality is what we refer to as the Hadith and the Sunnah. Without the personality of the Prophet, Muslims would have had to rely only on the Qur’an and the explanation of scholars.
Standardization of Hadith

The first systematic standardization effort on the Hadith of Prophet Muhammad was initiated by the Caliph Umar Ibn Abdul Aziz (99-101). His learning and interest in the study of Hadith, coupled with his experience as governor of Madina and his consequent content with the Muhaddithin of that city, particularly with its well known judge (Abu-Bakr Ibn Muhammad had a good deal do with his resolution in this respect.

This Caliph commissioned Abubakr Ibn Muhammad, Muhammad Ibn Muslim Ibn ‘Ubaryyd Allah, Ibn Shihab al-Zubari other scholars to make a systematic collection and compilation of the Hadith. These scholars carried out their task carefully and by the beginning of the second century after Hijra, a considerable collection of Hadith came into existence.

As a result of the tireless effort of the compilers of Hadith, many volumes come into existence. The following are some of the most important volumes.

1. The Muwatta of Imam Malik (93 -197H).
2. The Musnad of Sulayman Ibn Fahd al Jerrid Abu Daud al-Tayalisi (133-204)
3. The Musnad of Abu Abd Allah Ahmad Ibr. Muhammad Ibn Hambal (164 -241 AH)
4. The Sunan of Abu Muhammad Abd Allah Ibn Abd Rahman al-Bukhari (181 - 255H)
5. The Sahih of Abu Abd Allah Muhammad Ibn al-Bukhari (194 - 256)
6. The Sunnan of Abu Daud Sulayman Ibn Al -Ash’ath al- Azdi (202 -2754)

1.0 INTRODUCTION

In this course, you will learn about the Sunnah of Prophet Muhammad. The Sunnah is the practice, habits, deeds and actions of the Prophet. It is closely linked to the Hadith of the Prophet, and sometimes the Hadith and Sunnah are used together because the two are related to the prophet Muhammad. No successful study can be carried out on Hadith without the study of his Sunnah.

2.0 OBJECTIVES

At the end of this course, you should be able to:

Understand the meaning of Sunnah
Distinguish between the Hadith and the Sunnah
Discuss the relationship between the Sunnah and Hadith

3.0 MAIN CONTENTS

3.1 Definition of Sunnah

Sunnah can be defined as the practices, habits, deeds and actions of Prophet Muhammad. Sunnah represents the teachings and messages of the prophet and reconstructions in man’s beliefs, thought, life and conduct made under Allah’s instructions.

In other words, the Sunnah of the Prophet is the best relic of his role as Prophet and messenger of Allah. In addition, it consists of very clear reference to specific events and incidents of his life, both public and private.

Furthermore, the Sunnah consists of the attitude of Prophet Muhammad as a preacher, a warner and conveyer of good tidings for the believers in this world.

In addition, we find the Sunnah of the Prophet in his early childhood, his poverty, his relationship with his wives, and treatment of people under him when he became a leader and many others. In short, the Sunnah means complete way of life of the Prophet, both private and public.

SELF ASSESSMENT EXERCISE 1

Explain the meaning of Sunnah

3.2 Sunnah in the Life of a Muslim

The Sunnah being the practice and habits of the Prophet plays an important role in moulding and shaping the life of a Muslim. This is because whoever follows the Sunnah of the Prophet shall have full reward from Allah. The Prophet will never do or say anything except by the divine directive from Allah (Wahy). Thus a Muslims who follow the Sunnah shall never go astray.

The Sunnah constitutes a major ingredient for whoever desires to the favours of Allah in this world and in the hereafter. This is because the Prophet was sent by Allah to guide man to the right direction. Whoever follows the guidance of Allah will have paradise as his reward. It should also be noted that the Sunnah of the prophet constitutes a guiding principle for the early Muslims especially his companions of the prophet. A group of Muslims used to go to the house of the Prophet every day, sit around the corridors of his house and observe him in everything he did. These people will not go back to their house until the Prophet has gone to sleep. The following day they would report in his house to continue with their observations. These people are known as Ikhwanu Saffah (Brethren of Purity).

The aims and objectives of the Ikhwanu Saffah were to cultivate the Sunnah of the Prophet in their lives. To this end, the later generations took many instances and inspirations from the early Muslims as regards the traditions, habits and lifestyle of the prophet.

SELF ASSESSMENT EXERCISE 2

Explain the role of the Sunnah of the Prophet in the life of a Muslim.
3.3 Link between Hadith and Sunnah

There is a close link between the Hadith and the Sunnah. In fact, some scholars use the two terms interchangeably. While the actions, approvals, disapprovals and altitudes of the prophets constitute his Sunnah, the Hadith represents his statements, wise sayings as well as decorators.

The Hadith is a documentation of reports which were compiled by the prophet and passed down from one follower to another. Some of them wrote down these reports which later generation read and studied. In the case of the Sunnah, these are the habits, as well as traditions of the Prophet his companion copied from and use in their daily activities.

The Sunnah of the Prophet is what is translated into his actions which make him on exemplary leader, a caring and trusted husband, a tolerant religious teacher and, above all, a committed statesman. None of his sayings contradicts his actions. While the Hadith is theoretical, the Sunnah is the practical aspect of the life of the Prophet. In the eyes of the scholars, the reliability of the transmission of Hadith from one person to another must be based on good reputation for trustworthiness, honesty and scholarship.

By this, the Hadith became the embodiment of the “way of the prophet”. This way of the prophet is his Sunnah such as the method he followed in his ablutions, the way he observed prayers, in his buying and selling things. In his judgments and commands about marriage and so on.

SELF ASSESSMENT EXERCISE 1

Explain the link between the Sunnah and the Hadith of the Prophet Muhammad.

3.4 The Life of the Prophet As Exemplified By His Actions

The Qur’an is full of explanations as well as expressions about the conducts of the prophet which were manifested in his behaviours as well as characters even before his call to prophet hood. The essence of this is to further explain that indeed both the character as well as the habits of the prophets was acknowledged as divine gifts from Allah. For instance,
You have indeed in the messenger of Allah a beautiful pattern of conduct for anyone whose hope is in Allah and the final day, and who engages much in the praise of Allah.

Similarly ‘Qur’an 68:4 states thus:
“And you (Muhammad) stand on an exalted standard of character”

The prophet Muhammad was full of virtues which later became a reference point for his followers who saw in him a very beautiful pattern of life to guide in all affairs. Muhammad’s nature raised him above the petty spite of his contemporaries and for this reason, Allah made appeal to their reason and logic of events such as when he was accused of madness.

We should note that Muhammad, right from the beginning of his life, was guided by the power of Allah to forgive, to love, to respect, to show affection, to embrace all good deeds, and to speak against evil deeds. All these made him an embodiment of character that is pure and of high value. There is therefore, no contradiction between the sayings of Muhammad and his behavior.

In his pre-prophethood life, Muhammad was given nicknames such as Al-Amīn (The Trustworthy) among others. On assumption of prophet-hood these character traits in him became fully developed and everybody trusted him including the non-Muslims. No wonder therefore, that Muhammad became a rallying point even among the Meccans who were idol worshippers.

4.0 CONCLUSION

The Sunnah of the holy prophet Muhammad constitutes his habits, his character as well as his lifestyle. We can conclude this unit by saying that every Muslim at every point in time is always conscious and reminded of the need to follow the Sunnah of the Prophet in whatever he does.

5.0 SUMMARY
We have treated in this unit the definition of Sunnah and its relationship with the hadith of the prophet. Although the two belong to the life and character of the Prophet, there seem to be some differences between the two. While the hadith has to do with the statements and the traditions of the prophet the Sunnah are his habits and behaviours which have been observed by his close companions.

6.0 TUTOR MARKED ASSIGNMENT

a. Define the term Sunnah.
b. Explain the significance of Sunnah to the life of a Muslim.

1.0 INTRODUCTION

In this course you will learn about the science of verification of Hadith which was used by the early compilers of Hadith so that the statements of the Prophet are free of corruption. Immediately the Prophet died many people with false claims came up with statements credited to the Prophet. In order to ascertain the genuine reports about the Prophet one major yardstick used was the Asmā’Rijāl.

2.0 OBJECTIVES

At the end of this course, you should be able to:

- Understand the meaning of Asmā’Rijāl
- Discuss the conditions for accepting a genuine Hadith
- Highlight the efforts of the companions of the Prophet in the compilation of Hadith

3.0 MAIN CONTENTS

3.1 Meaning of Asmā’Rijāl

Literally, Asmā’Rijāl means names of men but in the technical term it means the science for the verification of traditions of Prophet Muhammad. It also means the biography and criticisms of the narrators of Hadith or any such aspects of their life that may be helpful in the determination of their proper identity as well as reliability.

Immediately the Prophet died, many people came up with false statement credited to the Prophet but which indeed were aimed at promoting themselves. Some brought materials including products and claimed that the Prophet has approved their consumption. There was therefore the need for careful acceptance of these statements so that
In addition, the character of the reporter both in the private and the public needed to be examined. At the initial stage most companions kept the traditions of the Prophet in their memory while some (who were literate) wrote down these statements. The Asmā’ Rijāl is therefore the scientific approach towards verification of the traditions brought by any of the companions of the Prophet.

SELF ASSESSMENT EXERCISE 1

Define Asma’ Rijal in Hadith.

3.2 Conditions for Accepting Hadith

There were certain conditions that must be fulfilled before any Hadith is accepted as statements of the Prophet. They include:

1. The Hadith should not be at variance with the teachings of the Qur’an or any of the accepted principles of Islam.
2. The Hadith should not be contrary to the well known traditions already accepted in Islam.
3. The Hadith should not be against reason or laws of nature as well as common experience.
4. Any Hadith that contain statements which are against the Islamic belief of Prophethood should be rejected.
5. Any Hadith that sings that the praises of any tribe, nation or culture should be totally rejected.
6. Under the principle of Asmā’ Rijāl, any Hadith that tends to predict the future should be rejected.
7. Any Hadith that suggests lesser punishment for a big offence or a big punishment for a lesser offence should be totally rejected.

Apart from the above, the early scholars of Hadith took time to scrutinize the personalities of transmitters of Hadith. These are in the areas of their truthfulness, reliability and maturity.

In addition, the character of any transmitter of Hadith is also a focus of attention under the science of Asmā’ Rijāl. This is to find out if the transmitter for instance is a drunkard, a gambler or an adulterer. The intention was that since the Prophet was a man of impeccable character, any statement credited to him and for which should be a guide to future Muslims must be of doubtless status.
SELF ASSESSMENT EXERCISE 2

Discuss four conditions which must be met before the Hadith is accepted.

3.3 Qualification of a Transmitter of Hadith

The following are the qualifications of a transmitter of Hadith:

1. Any transmitter of Hadith must belong to either the group of companions of the Prophet or their contemporaries. These were the people who saw the Prophet and heard him saying certain things at a particular time. They were in the best position to quote the Prophet correctly.

2. A transmitter of Hadith, if not a companion, must belong to the group of the tābiʿūn that is those who met the companions of the Prophet even though they did not see the Prophet himself. Their interactions with the companions of the Prophet gave them an advantage of getting the correct statement as well as the recording made by the companions of the Prophet.

3. To qualify as a transmitter of Hadith such a person must be a Muslim of pure character as well as sound Islamic background. He must have been a knowledgeable person in the study and memorization of the Qur’an.

4. The earliest formal collection of traditions was in the form of Musnad which is preceded by chains of transmitters known as Isnād. To qualify therefore such statement must be traced back to a companion of the Prophet who heard directly from him.

5. Another qualification of a transmitter is that the statements must be by direct speech such as A told me, saying that B said C had informed him that the Prophet said so and so. To qualify such statements must have an unbroken chain. On the basis of this principle in Aṣmāʾ Rijāl, a tradition reported by a single companion (sahābi) of the Prophet was rejected.

6. Another qualification of a transmitter is that he must have a good retentive memory and high qualities of head and heart. He must not be a person of poor memory.

SELF ASSESSMENT EXERCISE 3

Enumerate the qualifications of a transmitter of Hadith.
3.4 Classification of Hadith

Unlike the Qur’an, which is the word of Allah the Hadith contains statements as well as approvals by the Prophet. The early Muslim scholars have therefore classified the Hadith based on their authenticity. In other words, not all Hadith have the same status and a student of Islamic studies should be able to distinguish between one Hadith and the other both in use as well as in teaching.

Following therefore are some of the categories into which Hadith is classified:

i. The Sahih

This is the authentic Hadith. It is the first category among the excellent Hadith. Any Hadith under this category is genuine and has passed all tests. The reputation of reporters of Hadith in this category is of high status due to high level of scrutiny before accepting the Hadith. One of such collectors was Muhammad b. Ismail Abu Abd Allah Al-Ju’fi popularly known as Imam Al Bukhari. The Hadith in this category are highly rated by Muslims. For instance Al-Bukhari laboured for 16 years on the compilation of his sahih. He also sought the aid of prayer before committing traditions to writing. He was also reported to have interrogated over one thousand scholars living in places so distance as Balkh, Merv, Nisabur, Hijaz, Egypt and Syria.

Another scholar of repute in this category was Abul Hussain Muslim b. Al-Hajjaj who also traveled widely to collect Hadith in Arabia, Egypt, Syria and Iraq. Muslim had the great opportunity to listen to famous learned men like Ahamad b. Hanbal.

In addition, Hadith under this category have their chains of narration properly retained and unbroken and they cover various aspect of life.

SELF ASSESSMENT EXERCISE 1

Explain the meaning of Sahih.

ii. The Hassan

These are the fair traditions although inferior as regards authenticity. In terms of rating it is next to Sahih but not as authentic. Any Hadith under this category is widely accepted because it is next in quality to the first category. The authorities of Hadith in this category are rated very high by scholars of Hadith and this is why the two are regarded as very reliable in the classification of Hadith.
The Hassan contents of Hadith are practically identical with those of Sahih. The only areas of differences are their headings according to subject matters.

Much attention has been paid to the Isnads to the extent that any minor break in them renders such Hadith unacceptable. The Hadith in this category cover topics in the area of Islamic theology like the five pillars of Islam, marriage, law of inheritance, pre-destination, and free will.

SELF ASSESSMENT EXERCISE 2

Explain the relationship between the Sahih and Hassan types of Hadith.

iii. The Da’īf

This is basically a weak Hadith which makes it unreliable and unacceptable. In the categorization, any Hadith that is termed Da’īf is not to be taken as an authentic statement of the Prophet. According to Doi, the Da’īf traditions are divided further based on the degree of their weaknesses either in the report (ruwwāt) or in the text (matn). These are:

1. Muallaq Tradition: This is tradition in which one of two transmitters are omitted in the beginning of their Isnad. In other words, a broken chain of transmission.
2. Maqtū’u Tradition: These are those traditions or statement of the Prophet singularly reported by a Tabi’i that is a man of second category after the Prophet.
3. Munqati’ Tradition: These are generally broken traditions and statements of the Prophet. They are unreliable.
4. Mursal Tradition: These are the incomplete traditions in the Isnād of which a companion (sahabi) is omitted e.g. “a tabi’i says the prophet said…”
5. Musahhaf Tradition: These are the traditions which have mistake in the words or letter of the Isnād or the Matn.
6. Shadh Tradition: These are the traditions with a reliable chain of reporters but their meanings are contrary to other similarly attested traditions narrated by the majority of transmitters.
7. Mawdū’u Tradition: These are the outright fabricated and untrue traditions.

4.0 CONCLUSION
The science of scrutiny in Hadith, otherwise known as Asma’Rijāl, is a very important study in the science of Hadith. As we have learnt in this unit, many statements would have been credited to the Prophet by selfish and mischief makers. It was therefore this study that has given every Muslim the joy that what we have today recorded as Hadith of the Prophet have undergone several scientific scrutiny.

5.0 SUMMARY

We have learnt in this unit the various methods of ascertaining the authenticity of Hadith of the Prophet which makes it an acceptable document for the use of Muslims on religious as well as research efforts. Unlike the Qur’an, the Hadith is a man-made effort and should therefore, be properly tested so that statements that were not directly from the Prophet were not smuggled into it.

Explain the significance of the Asma’Rijal in the science of Hadith.

1.0 INTRODUCTION
In this course, we shall engage in the analysis of the various roles the Hadith plays in the life of a Muslims. Just as the Qur’an, the Hadith provide for a Muslim the basic ethics for life as well as the interpretations of Qur’anic injunctions so that a Muslim is guided and constantly reminded of his faith. Furthermore, since the 19th Century, the Orientalists have been trying to re-arrange the texts of the Qur’an in chronological order with the aim of faulting the holy Book. Some even went further to discredit the Hadith as mere fabrications and conjectures of the companions of the Prophet. These Orientalists include Theodore Voldeke, A. Rodwell, J.A. Schacht and M.W. Watt among others. We shall also examine some of these in this unit.

2.0 OBJECTIVES
At the end of this course, you should be able to:

- Mention some of the roles the Hadith plays in the life of a Muslim
- Discuss how the Hadith complements the Qur’an
- Analyze the position of some of the Orientalists on genuineness of Hadith
3.0 MAIN CONTENTS

3.1 Hadith Explaining the Qur’an

The Qur’an clearly asks Prophet Muhammad to explain its meaning and teachings to the people thus:

We sent the Prophets with clear signs and Books; and we Have sent down unto thee (also) a Message: that you may explain clearly to men what is sent for them and that they may give thought (Qu’ran 16:44)

In the interpretation of the Qur’an, Muhammad depended on divine guidance and instructions and did not speak of anything out of his own imagination. His followers noted his utterances with all attention and remembered them of writing down the explanations of the prophet on Qur’an and this makes the message of the holy book clearer to them.

Through the comments of the prophet on various passages and injunctions of the Qur’an, issues in the book become clearer and better appreciated. New converts to Islam require the statement of the Prophet about the religion. This was because they would have chosen faulty steps for lack of proper understanding of the Qur’an. For example, ablution may not be explicit enough. But with the Hadith, a Muslim understands better, the method of performances of ablution, each step following the other. The same goes for other rituals in Islam.

SELF ASSESSMENT EXERCISE 1

Explain the role of Hadith in the proper understanding of the Qur’an

3.2 Practical Application to Muslims’ Life

The Hadith plays a major role in the practical demonstration and application to the life of a Muslim. This helps in understanding Islam as practicable and easy religion.

Take for instance the teaching of Islam on prayer (salat), it is the Hadith of the prophet that teaches concentration (khushūr) in salat. The prophet once told his followers “pray as you saw me pray”. And with the practical demonstration of how the prophet observed prayers, every muslim took to the
The prayer behaviour, comportment and engagement in meritorious activities during the holy month of Ramadan were made possible because of the Hadith of the Prophet. No wonder people rush to engage in one form of activity or the other. The Prophet’s practical demonstration is a factor in this direction.

Furthermore, the performance of Hajj which today is almost a must for every muslim is made attractive and practicable because the Hadith provides the details of its do’s and don’ts. Even though the directives on hajj are contained in the Qu’ran, the explanation of the Hadith makes it easier. For example, how to do the tawaf, what is expected during the Sa’yi, the activities at mount Arafat and so on.

SELF ASSESSMENT EXERCISE 2

Discuss how the Hadith influences the practical life of a Muslim

3.3 As a Supplementary Source.

Hadith is a supplement to the Qur’an. It is often said that no part of life of a Muslim is left untouched in the Qur’an, yet we find the Hadith as a good supplement to the holy book. The Qur’an provides a general guideline on issues and at times makes a broad declaration. These declarations are not usually self-explanatory. Here, it is the Hadith that provides such explanation.

For instance, the Qur’an enjoins Muslims to pay the Zakat (poor due), as one of the five pillars of Islam. How do we pay the zakat, the materials to be used, the interpretation of the various categories of recipient of zakat and so on are provided by the Hadith of the Prophet.

The Qur’an injunctions on the inheritance of an estate of a muslim is further explained and made clearer by the Hadith of the Prophet. Again looking at the issues of marriage and divorce, we have the Hadith as supplementary evidences to properly understand and practice the directives of Allah.

In other words, the Muslim’s proper practice of Islam may not be fully attained if his knowledge is based on the Qur’an alone. In fact, it may be difficult to fully appreciate the divine injunctions if there is no consultation of the Prophetic side of the issue. This is why Allah Himself has commanded Muslims to follow the footstep of the Prophet if indeed they want sincere guidance. Qur’an
O mankind! Verily, there has come to you the messenger with the truth from your Lord. So believe him, it is better for you. (Qur’an 4:170)

SELF ASSESSMENT EXERCISE 3

Discuss how the Hadith serves as a supplement to the Qur’an in the affairs of Muslims.

3.4 General Source of Information

The Hadith as the second source of guidance in Islam is not limited to an aspect of a Muslim life but indeed to every facet. And we can understand even from the Quranic statements thus:

“He it is who sent among the unlettered ones a messenger (Muhammad) from among themselves, reciting to them the book and AlHikmah. And verily, they had been before in manifest error” (Qur’an 62:2).

Those seeking the path of spiritual growth and development can take the example of the life of the Prophet as contained in the Hadith. Since the prophet was devoted to his Lord, such a Muslim too will no doubt witness positive changes by being near to the creator, Allah.

As for political life, the life of the Prophet as contained in his statements in the Hadith provides information on leadership qualities and prerequisites. The companions of the Prophet followed this path and so are many Muslims. Aspirations, preparation and expectation of leadership qualities are all contained in the Hadith of the Prophet for those who seek guidance.

The same goes for businessmen and women who may wish to know the life of the Prophet as it relates to business transactions. The Hadith is full of such information on how to enter into business, partnership, trade and commerce. The fact that the Prophet was a God-fearing businessman even before his call to Prophethood makes his life a model for other Muslims to follow.

SELF ASSESSMENT EXERCISE 4
Discuss how the Hadith serves as a source of information to the Muslims.

3.5 The Orientalists’ views

i. Reliability of the Isnad
Few Orientalists such as J. Schacht in his book Origin of Mohammedan Jurisprudence, published in 1950 has attempted to dislodge the importance of the Hadith as the second source of Islamic guidance. For instance, he held that the Isnad system in Hadith is not reliable and that most of the reports, if not all are fabrications brought into existence by political, dogmatic, justice and ideological exigencies of the second and third century of Islam.
Schacht made two suggestions in support of his views on the Hadith. The first was that the Islamic law falls outside the scope of religion of Islam so that the Qur’an might virtually be ignored as a source of Islamic jurisprudence. The second was that even the historical Hadith was not free from suspicion, because according to him it was formulated on juristic considerations.

These opinions of Schacht have been opposed by a Hadith scholar, M.M. A’zami who says the opinions of Schacht were wrong and his assumptions on the Hadith are unfounded. A’zami specifically referred to juridical activities of Prophet Muhammad as well as to the first century of Islamic literature. It shows that Schacht was wrong because he misinterpreted and misunderstood the activities of the Prophet. In addition, his conclusions were not substantiated by original authorities. For instance, Schacht relied on views of others on Imam Malik rather than on the Imam himself.

SELF ASSESSMENT EXERCISE 1

Discuss the Orientalists view on the reliability of Isnad in the science of Hadith.

3.2 The Status of Sirah of the Prophet

Some Orientalists also condemned the Sirah of the prophet Muhammad as a literature to be accepted by Muslims. According to W.M. Watt what in fact Western biography have done is to assume the truth of the brand outlines of the picture of Muhammad and to use this as the framework into which to fit as much Quranic material as possible. According to him, the most plausible methodology is to regard the Qur’an and the early traditional accounts as complimentary sources. The expression “the early traditional accounts used in the above passage refer to the Hadith literature, not to “the tradition”. Although Watt refers to the Hadith literature as of little value, we can observe that the first groups of scholars are not the truth in thinking that the Sirah literature is more or less another version of Hadith but they are very wrong in assuming that there is nothing in the Sirah that might be considered independently historical material.

More importantly, the Orientalists were wrong in assuming that in the face of the Christian historical sources which attest to the miraculous figure and the divinity of Jesus”, the need for doing the same for the founder of Islam as a result of the already existing juristic Hadith collected and arranged in chronological order.

Furthermore, the other Orientalists are right in holding that the Sirah provides the broad outlines of the Prophet’s life, but they are wrong in assuming that the Sirah, though a distinct literature, is essentially different from the Hadith literature or that the two developed in two different periods.
4.0 CONCLUSION

We have seen from the above that the opinions of Orientalists are reflections of their misgivings about Islam in general and the Prophet Muhammad in particular. As pointed out, we have seen the views as figment of imaginations rather than on concrete evidences.

5.0 SUMMARY

We have examined in this course the opinions of Orientalists on the Hadith especially as it affects the Isnad, charisma of transmitters as well as the status of the Sirah literature of the Prophet.

6.0 TUTOR MARKED ASSIGNMENT

Critically appraise the views of the Orientalists about the authenticity or otherwise of the Hadith of the Prophet Muhammad.

1.0 INTRODUCTION

In this unit, you would learn about the various teachings of hadith of Prophet Muhammad as well as about some early literatures on Hadith. Broadly speaking, the teaching of Hadith covers every aspect of the life of a Muslim - Social, Political, Economic, Matrimonial, Educational, and so on. And became the Qur’an has described the Prophet Muhammad as the best in character; a Muslim needs to follow the life pattern of prophet because he has the best character among men. Just like the Qur’an, the Hadith as we have it today come about as a result of efforts of some Muslims who felt that the legacy of the Prophet needed to be preserved for the generations yet unborn. This led to the compilation of his saying and deeds. Therefore in this unit, you will also learn about some of these pioneer Hadith Scholars.

2.0 OBJECTIVES

At the end of this course you would be able to:

- Explain some of the teachings of Prophet Muhammad on various aspects of human life.
- Discuss how the Hadith of the Prophet could serve as a model for the Muslim.
- Highlight the role of Hadith towards proper understanding of Islam.
3.0 MAIN CONTENT

3.1 The Hadith of the Prophet
The Hadith of the prophet teaches morals such as respect to parents, obedience to constituted authorities and so on. The Hadith of the prophet teaches modesty in everything we do, such as in eating, in speech, in dressing as well as in the affairs of those under us.

Furthermore, the Hadith of the prophet teaches Muslims discipline in all affairs. As a public officer, the prophet demonstrated how the public utility should not be converted to personal use. He protected and preserved the bayt al-māl (public treasury). Those statements of the prophet contained in the Hadith are today inspirations and moral teachings for the Muslims.

As for the preservation of dignity of human beings, the Hadith of the prophet teaches that a woman, for instance must protect her dignity, her virtues and not just throw herself around. For this reason, the Hadith taught on how to treat our wives, our girls and all those under us as husbands. The use of Hijāb was emphasized for female Muslims whenever they are outside or while in contact with male guests to their house.

SELF ASSESSMENT EXERCISE 1

Enumerate on the moral teachings of Hadith

3.2 Spiritual Teachings

The Hadith of the prophet teaches on how to get closer to Allah through various means. It is in the Hadith of the prophet that one could learn how best to utilize the five daily prayers for spiritual growth and development. It is also in the Hadith that we find those meritorious acts of devotion that could inspire one to get nearer to the Almighty Allah as well as reap benefit both here and the hereafter.

The Hadith of the prophet is full of lessons of night prayers (tahajjud) which again is a means of moving one closer to Allah. Such traditions of the prophet on the Tarāwīh prayers, the significance of nawāfīl in the night and so on teaches Muslims to always keep in touch with Allah.

The proper way of performance of hajji and umrah are other lessons which the Hadith of the prophet teaches. Various books of Hadith on Hajj are full of benefits of good conduct as well as of following the patterns set by the prophet while in the holy land. Even prayers offered by the prophet but which are contained in his various ahādīth (pl. of Hadith) are good means of developing the mind spiritually.

3.3 The early Sīrah and Maghāz Literature.
There are three main sources of information on the life and activities of Prophet Muhammad. These are the Qur’an, the holy book revered as guidance to mankind through Muhammad. The second is the Hadith that is reports and traditions. The third sources are the Sīrah which is the biography or oral traditions.

The early Sīrah / Maghāzi literature are very much similar in respects of their material and contents. Basically they are both collections of ‘report’. This is why scholars of Hadith classify the two into one category. But unlike the Hadith, the Sīrah / Maghāzi are arranged chronologically and in accordance with the incidents and events of the Prophet’s life. Examples are the childhood of the Prophet, his foster mother, his first contact with Khadijat and so on.

The Sirah / Maghāzi are good sources utilized by early Hadith Scholars to put together the traditions of the Prophet. There was initial resistance to this more because of the fear expressed by other companions of the Prophet on the possible mix up with the Passages of the Qur’an. This was why the companions waited until the death of the Prophet before compiling his sayings and traditions.

SELF-ASSESSMENT EXERCISE 1

Discuss the Sirah / Maghāzi as Sources of Hadith Literature.

3.4 Aban Ibn. Uthman Ibn. Affan

After the death of the Prophet, many companions and those who lived after them kept written notes of statements and utterances of the Prophet. One of them was ‘Aban Ibn ‘Uthman Ibn Affan (born between 15 and 20 Hijra). He was the son of the third Caliph, Uthman Ibn. Affan.

Aban collected and transmitted many reports relating to Maghāzi in addition to his teaching of Fiqh (Islamic jurisprudence). He also adjudicated among Muslims based on Hadith, and among his client was Abu Bakr Ibn Hazan. During this same period, a junior contemporary to Aban, i.e. Urwah Ibn Al-Zubayr (born 26 Hijra), gained same as Muhaddith and a Faqqih.

Another early Hadith compiler who received his study from ‘Aban was Abu Bakr Ibn Muhammad and Amir Ibn Hazan who later became a qadi of Medinah when Umar Ibn Abdul Aziz was its Governor. This was by the last quarter of the first century of the Hijra, the collection, preservation and study of Hadith had gained ground among Muslims.

SELF ASSESSMENT EXERCISE 2

Write short notes on the works of Aban Ibn Uthman Ibn Affan.

3.5 Muhammad Ibn Umar al-Wāqidi

Of those early works on Hadith which have survived more or less in their complete forums, the most notable is Muhammad Ibn Umar alwaqidi (130-207H). He flourished during the time of Khalifah Harun Rasheed and al-Ma’amun, during the Abassid dynasty.
Al-Wāqidi was an active write who compiled at the early stage of Hadith literature a number of works. One of them was Kitab al-Maghāzi where he mentioned the authorities on whom he based his account, including Al-Zuhri, Mu‘mar and Abu Ma’shar. Some scholars also said Al-Wāqidi made use of the works of Ibn. Is'hāq, another great scholar of Hadith.

One characteristics feature of the works of al-Waqidi was that he concentrated his attention on the Medinah period of the Prophet’s life. Although some Scholars had negative rating of the works of al-Waqidi as an unsound and untrustworthy authority and as having tampered with or fabricated Hadith for his purpose. His secretary Ibn Sa‘ad however considers him a good authority on Sīrah and Maghāzi The early work of al-Waqidi was titled Al-Tabaqat, al-Kubra in various Volumes.

The first two volumes of this Hadith book are written on the life and activities of the Prophet, while the rest is a biographical dictionary of the companions and generations following them.

4.0 CONCLUSION

There is no doubt that the Hadith is a very important source of the practice of Islam, from our study so far, the Hadith provides a way for each Muslim to practice the religion and live a decent life. More so, since Sīrah and Maghāzi works are also compilations of reports, they form the basis of the Hadith literature as you have learnt in this unit. The early compilers of Hadith were scholars who devoted their time and resources to the study of Hadith.

5.0 SUMMARY

The following are the major points that you have learnt in this unit:

1. The Hadith teaches how to get close to Allah

2. The Hadith teaches morals

3. The Hadith teaches discipline

1.0 INTRODUCTION

This unit reviews the meaning of Hadith, its dissemination, collection during and after the demise of the Prophet Muhammad, the position of Hadith in Islam and the golden era of Hadith collection.
2.0 OBJECTIVES
At the end of this unit, you should be able to:
Trace the origin of the Hadīth.
Describe the role played by the Ṣahābah in the Hadīth transmission and preservation.
Discuss the collection of Hadīth after the demise of the Prophet (Ṣ) and the Ṣahābah.
Expatiate on the activities relating to Hadīth collection during the Umayyad period.
Relate the events in the Golden Age of Hadith collection.

3.0 MAIN CONTENTS
3.1 The Origin of Hadīth
Hadīth is an Arabic word which means a report, story, narration, or discourse. Its plural form is Ahādīth. Scholars succinctly define Hadīth as: “A word spoken, an act done or a confirmation (approval) given by the Holy Prophet Muhammad (Ṣ)”. Prophet Muhammad (Ṣ), like other prophets was sent not only to deliver but also to interpret, expound or practicalize divine message from Allah (Qur’ān). This is confirmed in the Holy Qur’an: “There is surely a good example for you in the Messenger of Allah, for Him who hopes (to meet) Allah and the hereafter and remembers Allah abundantly” (33:21).

It can then be inferred that whatever the Prophet (Ṣ) said or did was based on the revelation to him. Thus, his acts and sayings were inspired by Allah. This is the reason why some scholars refer to Hadīth as Wahy Ghair Matluww (the un-recited revelation). Hadīth covers all aspects of human life such as spiritual, economic, political, social, matrimonial and even judicial matters. The area of Hadīth is very wide that it even touches the issue of conjugation, inheritance, divorce and more.

Another word that is often used interchangeably with Hadīth is Sunnah. Briefly, Sunnah means complete way of life of the Prophet (Ṣ), both private and public. That is, Prophet’s practice, habits, deeds and actions. So, one of the major differences is that while Hadīth is an oral communication by the Prophet, Sunnah is his practical way of life. Whatever be the case, it has to be understood that the Hadīth and the Sunnah represents the second primary source of Islamic law.
Self-Assessment Exercise

Give the origin of Hadith and the scope of its subject matter.

3.2 Role of the Şahābah in the preservation of Hadīth

Naturally, the Şahābah sought after the knowledge of what the Prophet did or said because they understood them as law they should follow faithfully as they could. Mention could be made of Abu Hurairah who kept constant company with the Prophet for three years at the expense of many worldly pursuits in order to hear and see the virtuous words and acts of the Prophet. It was also been reported that Umar Ibn Khattāb who was not living very close to Madinah made arrangement with an Ansar to report to him whatever he saw or heard from the Prophet every other day. Thus, it was a common practise among the Sahabahs (companions) to inquire from themselves new acts and words of the Prophet whenever they met themselves. Historically, the earliest collection and preservation of Hadīth is credited to the Şahābah of the Prophet. The collections and preservation of Prophet’s sayings which later became Hadīth was the wonderful work of the companions and those who followed them. Mention could also be made of one known companion of the Prophet named Urwah bn Zubair who was said to have started the compilation of the sayings of the Prophet. His writings was said to have become documents for many companions through his son known as Hisham.

Research has shown that some Ahādīth were written in the days of the Prophet and the four orthodox caliphs with personal efforts. The companions understood that the Holy Prophet did not only come to reveal the message of the Qur’ān to the world but also to teach it and train people to run their lives in accordance with its requirement. This is acknowledge in the Holy Qur’an when Almighty says: “He (Allah) is the one who raised up, among the unlettered, a Messenger from among themselves who recites the verses of Allah, and make them pure, and teaches them the book and the wisdom” (62:2). The Prophet himself also encouraged the companions to spread his sayings. He says: "May Allah bestow vigour to a person who learns my saying and learns it by heart, then conveys it to other exactly as he hears it."

During this time, The Sahabah used different means to collect and preserve the Hadith of Prophet Muhammad. Some of the ways are:

1. Discussion: The Sahabahs used to tell each other what they had learnt form the Prophet (S). Also, one person used to listen to other versions of the same Hadith. The result of this tadārrus (discussion) was to learn ahādīth, correct mistakes and preserve the correct versions of ahādīth. All these efforts of the Sahabahs were to comply with the directions given by the Prophet thus: “Those present should convey (the Hadith) on my behalf, even though it be a single verse. Thus, the Prophet motivated the Sahabah to study ahādīth.

2. Practice: Another way through which ahādīth were collected by the Companions was through practice. Messages in the ahādīth are intimately connected to human life. The Prophet himself, did not only give lessons and sermons, he also trained and encouraged them to practicalize what they heard or saw. The acts and words of the Prophet were not taken as academic knowledge but as living traditions that manifested itself in all facets of society.

3. Writing: Many of the Sahabahs could read and write. These Companions wrote down what they heard from the Prophet. Writing of Hadith, however, was not common that time. The reason being that Prophet Muhammad discouraged it for fear that it could be mixed up with the Holy Qur’ān.

4. Memorization: The Şahābah also preserved the traditions of the Prophet through memorization. They used to learn the ahādīth by heart. It should be remembered that the Arabs were proud of their power of memorization that they placed more confidence in it than in writing. Abu Hurairah was quoted saying: “I have divided my night into three parts. In one third of the night, I perform Şalāh, in one third I sleep and in one third I memorize the ahādīth of the Prophet.

Self-Assessment Exercise.
Discuss the role of the Sahabah in the preservation of Hadith.
3.3 Issue of Prohibition of Hadith Recording during the Prophet Era

In the beginning, the Prophet forbade some Sahabah from writing down the Hadiths. At that time, Prophet only allowed the writing of the Holy Qur’an. It should be noted that the earlier prohibition was not because the ahādīth had no authoritative value, as he himself, ordered oral transition of what he said or did. He was quoted to have said: “Do not write (what you hear) from me, and whoever has written something (he heard) should erase it. Narrate to others (what you hear) from me and whoever deliberately attributes a lie to me, he should prepare his seat in the fire.”

The fact is that, the Qur’an was revealed in piece-meal and when the revelation first started, many Sahabah wrote the ahādīth along with the Qur’an. Thus, the Prophet forbade the writing of the ahādīth for the fear that the two might get mixed up as the Sahabah were, then, not fully aware or familiar with the Qur’an style. However, it should be noted that Prophet Muhammad later removed the transitory measure when the Sahabah became fully conversant with the style of the Holy Qur’an and more writing materials were available. At this time, the danger of mixing the AHadīth with the Qur’an no longer existed.

Many ahādīth that were later reported from the Prophet were evidences that the writing of ahādīth was not only permitted but also ordered by the Prophet. Some of the ahādīth are:

“I swear by the one in whose hands is the soul of Muhammad, nothing comes of these two (lips) except truth. So do write”. Another Hadīth which was reported by Rafi’ Ibn Khadij says: “I said to the Prophet (ﷺ) ‘We hear from you many things, should we write them down’? He (ﷺ) replied: ‘You may write’.

Self - Assessment Exercise
Examine the view that the Prophet Muhammad banned some Sahabah from writing down of Hadith.

3.4 The Collection of Hadīth after the Death of the Prophet

Really, the importance of Hadīth recording, collection and even compilation were realized after the death of the Prophet. Particularly when the Islamic community was growing out of Arabia and time span of Prophet’s death was increasing, there was greater need of Hadīths not only by many Ṣahābah who misses some Hadīths of the Prophet during his life time but also those who did not meet or know the Prophet at all. The Prophet’s ahādīth and or Sunnah were highly needed to explain different parts of the Qur’ān, give practical example of how to carry out some Islamic injunctions and the likes.

Another major reason that necessitated the collection of Hadīth was that the Companions who knew the Hadīth at first hand were gradually passing away. Thus, many people showed great eagerness in learning and preserving the precious Hadīth literature.

This started during the age of the rightly guided caliphs. At this time, Companions of the Prophet settled in different countries which had been conquered by the Muslims. So, a number of centres for learning and collection of Hadīths came into existence. Companions like Abu Hurairah, Abdullah Ibn Abbas, Abdullah Ibn Umar and Anas bn Malik became centers to whom people came from different parts of the Islamic territory to learn and collect Hadīths. Prophet’s wives like Aishah and Hafsah, as expected were also custodians of Hadīth and Sunnah of the Prophet and they were approached for its collection. When a disciple had collected and learned all the Hadīths he could from one Companion, he would go to the next Companion and so on, collecting as many traditions as possible. Some even travelled long distance to collect traditions from various Companions.

Self – Assessment Exercise

How did the collection of Hadith started after the demise of the Prophet.

3.5 Collection of Hadīth during the Umayyad Era

This era which immediately followed the era of the four orthodox Caliphs, though, witnessed different challenges, also contributed to the growth of Hadīth collection. There was no single official compilation of collections of Hadīth prior this time. Hadiths were in the custody of individuals and unlike the periods of the Prophet and the successors that directly followed it; they were not entirely free from lies and fabrications to support different sects that emerged and to back up the activities of some rulers. This brought about the situation whereby the collectors of Hadīth started asking about the chain of narrators. So, Hadīth collectors were given much respect and honour not only by the individual Muslims but also, especially by the rulers.

Special reference could be made to the period of the celebrated Umayyad Caliph, Umar Ibn Abdul Azeez (682-720). He was said to have really encouraged the collection of Hadīth. He even asked Muhammad ibn Shihab al-Zuhri and Abu Bakr bn al-Hazm to prepare a collection of all available Traditions. The caliph was said to have written to Abu Bakr bn al-Hazm thus: “Whatever sayings of the Prophet can be found, write them down, for I fear the loss of knowledge and disappearance of learned men, and do not accept anything but the Hadīth of the Holy Prophet (ﷺ) and people should make knowledge public”.

The determined efforts of the scholars of this time led to the unique and excellent epoch in the history of Hadīth collection as few important works of Hadīth emerged. The works of Shihab al-Zuhri and that of Abu Bakr al-Hazm are well known. Another collection of Hadīth of the time was Musnad of Sulaiman bn Fahd al-Jerīdī and Abu Dawud al-Tayālisī (133-204).

3.6 The Golden Era of Hadīth Collection (200-300 A.H.)

This is one of the greatest periods in the collection Hadīth. Actually, it is the time when the Sahābī who learned Islam directly from the Prophet (ﷺ) had gone. Some sects had emerged and the possibility of misquoting the Prophet by some people with greedy interest was quite apparent. So, it was essential to authenticate true Hadīth without sponsorship of any ruling authority. Therefore, it is the very stage in which the science of Hadīth was formally founded.

Many scholars emerged at this time and took up the great task of searching, collecting and refining Hadīth. They classify them into relevant categories such as authentic, good or false. Elaborate rules and canons were put in place to distinguish the true traditions from false ones. In this age, the Prophet’s traditions were separated from the reports of the Companions and their Successors. The authentic traditions were carefully and painstakingly collected and compiled in book form.

The life history of many scholars of Hadīth show different difficulties they went through in the course of collecting Hadīth. They travelled far and wide to many land and for many years in search of people who were in custody of one or two Hadīth or Sunnah of the Prophet. At times, to hear a single Hadīth, or to confirm the presence of one word in a Hadīth, the scholars used to travel great distances east and west to reach the living person who was part of the chain of transmission whose authority the Hadīth was being narrated.

Meanwhile, the Golden Period witnessed the emergence of the six authentic collections of Hadīth. These are considered standard works on Hadīth and are known as a’ş-Ṣiḥāh ‘s-Sītah. The authors’ names and book titles which will be elaborately dealt with in the next six Units are:

1) Ṣahih Bukhārī written by Muhammad Ibn Ismail al-Bukhārī (194-256 A.H.).
2) Ṣahih Muslim written by Imam Muslim Ibn Qushayrī (204-261 A.H.).
3) Sunan Ibn Mājah written by Imam Ibn Mājah (202-275 A.H.)
4) Jāmiu Tirmidhī written by Abu Musa al-Tirmidhi (209-279 A.H.)
5) Sunan a`n-Nasāī written by Abu Abdu `r- Rahmān an-Nasāī
6) Sunan Abu Dawud written by Abu Dawud (202-275 A.H.)

4.0 CONCLUSION

Hadīth is: “a word spoken, an act done, confirmation or approval given by the Holy Prophet Muhammad (ﷺ)”. It is different from Sunnah which is the private and public way of life of the Prophet but the two words are sometimes used interchangeably.

The preservation of Hadīth started right from the time of the prophet Muhammad through transmission, memorization or practicalization while literate Companions of the Prophet wrote them down. The collection of Hadīth started as private affairs until the Umayyad era when it was given official backing by caliph Umar bn ‘Abdu ’l- ‘Azīz. The Traditionalists sojourned and endured difficulties in the course of Hadīth collection. They developed technical methods to sift spurious Hadiths from authentic ones. This led to the declaration of six works as the most authoritative and Sound Collections a`ṣ-Ṣihāhu `ṣ-Ṣittah during the Golden Era of Hadīth Collection.

5.0 SUMMARY

This unit traces the origin of Hadīth and its preservation as a private interest during the lifetime of the Prophet Muhammad (ﷺ) till the time of the orthodox caliphs. It establishes that hadith collection was given official recognition during the Umayyad period and that the years between 200 – 300 A.H. were the Golden Age of the efforts of the Traditionalists which was crowned by the emergence of the six Sound Collections of Hadīth.

1.0 INTRODUCTION

Imam Bukhārī is an icon in the field of science of Hadīth. He contributed immensely to Hadīth collection and compilation. He is one of the six major collectors of Hadīth. In this unit, we shall survey his life history and examine his contribution to the science of Hadīth.

2.0 OBJECTIVES

It is hoped that by the end of this unit, you should be able to :

- Give the full name of Imam al-Bukhārī
- Give his family background and birth
- Discuss his academic status in the science of Hadīth
- Assess the content and significance of the book: al-Ｊāmi ‘u ṣ-Ṣaḥīḥ.

3.0 MAIN CONTENT

3.1 Full Name, Birth and Parentage.

Imam Bukhārī’s full name was Abu Abdullāh Muḥammad ibn Ismā’il ibn Ibrāhīm ibn al-Mughirah ibn Bardazibah al-Ja’afī al-Bukhārī. He was born on Friday 13th Shawwāl 194 A. H. in the city of Bukhāra, one of the ancient wide and grand cities in the southern Uzbekistan, the Amur Darya valley, west of Samarkand. It is pertinent to note that there are different opinions concerning when the city of Bukhāra was conquered or occupied by the Muslims. Nevertheless, before the Islamic victories, Bukhāra was the capital city of the kingdom of Samania.

Imam Bukhārī’s forefathers were Zoroastrians. They were said to have accepted Islam on the hand of a one time ruler of the city of Bukhāra known as Yaman Ja’afī. That is the reason why the family came to be known as Ja’afī. Imam Bukhārī is also called Ja’afī. His father was a pious and rich man. He was a great personality in the field of the sayings and traditions of Prophet Muhammad (ṣ). But this religious father died when his son was in his early childhood. So, the responsibility of his upbringing solely fell on Bukhārī’s mother. The mother was also a pious and great worshiper; it was reported that Imam Bukhārī became blind while he was still young and Almighty Allah returned the Imam’s sight because of her pious mother’s fervent supplications.

Self –Assessment Exercise

3.2 His Knowledge and Travelling

Starting from his youthful age, Imam Bukhārī showed signs of intelligence that surprised everyone around him. He had a sharp mind, an attentive heart, an amazing memory, and an incredible ability to memorize. He started his education in his home town. Before he was ten, he had memorized the whole Quran, mastered the Arabic language, covered much of the Fiqh, and memorized many Prophetic Hadiths. His pious mother always encouraged him and prepared a suitable atmosphere for him to acquire knowledge. With special interest in Hadith literature and its recitation; he achieved a great deal of knowledge, under the guidance of well known scholars of Hadith such as Ibn Mubarak.
He travelled to Makkah when he was sixteen years old accompanied by his mother and elder brother; Ahmed ibn Ismail. After the pilgrimage, his mother and brother returned home but Bukhārī remained in Makkah for two years seeking knowledge. This was the time he wrote his first book known as Qassasi ya al-Sahabah wal al-Tabieen (The Issues of the Companions and their Followers) and then started another one known as Tarikh Kabir (The big book of history). He then went to Madinah. After spending a total of six years in al-Hijaz (now the kingdom of Saudi Arabia), he left for Basrah, Kufah and Baghdad. He also visited many other places including Egypt, Nisharpur and Syria. He went to many of the cities many times for the purpose of knowledge and/or collection of Hadīth. For example, he went to Egypt and Syria two times; and Basrah four times.

Self – Assessment Exercise

Give account of knowledge and travelling of Imam Bukhārī

3.3 His Teachers and Pupils

Imam Bukhārī received knowledge from different scholars of his time. His travelling gave him advantage to meet great scholars of the time. He never considered age or superiority before he became the student of different erudite teachers. He met many religious scholars and particularly scholars of Hadīth like Imam Ahmad ibn Hanbal. The number of his teachers or those from whom he received Hadīth was said to be more than one thousand. Among his teachers were:

- Muhammad bn Salām Baikandi in Bukhārā
- Abdullah bn Muhammad Maşmūdī in Bukhārā
- Abu ‘Āşm Nabīl in Baṣrah
- Abdullah bn Rajā in Baṣrah
- Abu Abdu ‘r-Rahmān Magfī in Makkah
- Ahmad bn Muhammad in Makkah
- Abdu ‘l- ‘Azīz Uways in Madinah
- Abu Sābit Muhammad Abdullah in Madinah
- Abdullah bn Salih in Egypt
Saīd ibn Muhammad in Egypt
Abu Nāṣir Farawīsī in Damascus

Due to Imam’s commitment to knowledge, fear of Allah, simplicity, humbleness, matchless memory, God-gifted wisdom, comprehensive knowledge on the science of Hadīth, piety and generosity, he soon became an icon of knowledge and a widely recognized erudite teacher of his time. In his time, cities like Basrah, Baghdad, Naishapur, Samarkand and Bukhara were centers of learning. Imam went to these cities and more to dictate Ahādīth to countless people. Many people benefited from his knowledge and his pupils spread all over different cities. Among his pupils were:

- Abu Muhammad bn Sa`ad
- Husayn bn Āmil al-Baghdādī
- Muhammad bn Sulaymān al- Baghdādī
- Abu Bakr bn Dawud
- Umar bn Muhammad Bukhārī
- Muslim bn Hajāj
- Abu Abdullāh al-Nasāī
- Abu Bakr bn Ishaq ibn Khawārazmī
- Musa Harūn Jamal
- Ishaq bn Ahmed ibn Zariq al-Fārisī
- Yaqub bn Yusuf bn Akram
- Abdullah bn Wāṣīl
- Muhammad bn Abdullah Junayd
- Muhammad bn Khalaf

3.4 His Works

Greater part of Imam’s life was spent on travelling from place to place in search of Hadīths. He had little time to sit down and write books. That notwithstanding, it should be remembered that he wrote his first book during his stay in Makkah after Hajj and also left many publications. The most famous of the books is the `al-Jāmi`u ʾṣ-Ṣahīḥ. These are many of his works:

- Al-Tārīkh al-Kabīr,
- Khalq Af-ʿāli ʾl-Ibād
- Kitāb al-Wahīdayn,
- Kitāb al-Adab al-Mufrad,
- Kitāb Al-Dhuʿafāʾ,
- Juz Raf-ʿul-Yadayn,
- Juzʿ-ʾul-Qirāah khalf al-Imām,
- Al-Jāmiʿu ʾl-Kabīr,
- Aʿt-Tafsīr Al-Kabīr,
- Kitāb al-ʾIlal,
- Kitāb al-Manāqib,
- Asmāʾu ʾṣ-Ṣahābah.

3.5 al-Jāmiʿu ʾṣ-Ṣahīḥ. (The Authentic Narrations)

Imam Bukhārī was a jurist, historian and a commentator on the Qurʾān. More importantly, he was a collector of Hadīths. He contributed immensely to Islamic literature generally and to the science of Hadīth in particular. He travelled thousands of miles moving from one Islamic territory to another, undergoing all sorts of difficulties, hardships, and weariness, sometimes to obtain only one narration of the Prophet (ﷺ). He sometimes even had to eat grass to satisfy his extreme hunger after he had spent all his money. Even the few hours of night in which he snatched short naps to rest a while, were not so resting for him, as he used to wake up many times in a night to classify the narrations he had collected. Imam Bukhārī made a pact with himself that he wouldn’t include a narration from any narrator until he had personally met him, and listened to the narration with his own ears. He never accepted narrations except from the ones he knew for being honest, diligent, accurate, fearful of Allaah, and having a sharp memory. Imam Bukhārī was meticulous in choosing authentic Hadīths to the extent that he would perform ablution; pray two rak'ahs and supplicate to Allah for guidance before including any Hadīth that had already met the set down conditions in his book.

His book of collections of Hadīths which is very much popular and on which he spent sixteen years before completion is known as “al-Jāmi ‘u ʾṣ-Ṣāhih Al-Musnad Al-Mukhtaṣar min umūr Rasūlī Ilah Salla Allahu Alaihi Wa Sallam Wa Sunanīhī wa Ayyāmīhī” (The authentic and comprehensive traditions on the matters of the prophet peace and blessing of Allah be upon him, and his traditions and his lives). The book is now popularly known as al-Jāmi ‘u ʾṣ-Ṣāhih. (The Authentic Narrations) or al-Jāmi ‘u ʾṣ-Ṣāhih al-Bukhārī (The authentic narrations by Al-Bukhārī).

Imam Bukhārī collected 600,000 traditions of the Prophet out of which he memorized 200,000. It is pertinent to note that he was born at a time when Hadīth was being forged either to please rulers or to corrupt the religion of Islam. Therefore, it was a great task for him to sift the forged or unauthentic Hadīths from the authentic ones. He labored day and night and came out with approximately 7,275/7,397 Hadīths of which he deemed completely reliable out of the 600,000 he was said to have collected.

He began every chapter of the famous book with Qur’ānic verse to indicate the subject matter and the kind of tradition to be found in them. He arranged the Hadīths according to Musannaf i.e. collections classified by subject matter. This book covers almost all aspects of life in providing proper guidance from the Messenger of Allah (Ṣ). All the Hadīths in the al-Jāmi ʿu ʾṣ-Ṣāhih are grouped under 3,450 subject headings. Muslim scholars unanimously agree that al-Jāmi ‘u ʾṣ-Ṣāhih of Imam al-Bukhārī is the most authentic book after the glorious Qurʿān.

Commentaries on the al-Jāmi ‘u ʾṣ-Ṣāhih.
The most prominent commentary works on the al-Jāmi ‘u ʾṣ-Ṣāhih are as follows:

1. Al-Kawākib ad-dārī fī sharḥ Ṣāhiḥ ʾl-Bukhārī. by Muhammad bn Yusuf. Ali al-Karmānī d. 786 AH. It contains explanation of strange words, grammatical analysis, verification of reports, names and nicknames, and reconciliation of apparent contradictions. It was completed in Makkah Mukarramah in 775 AH.

2. Fat-hu ‘l-bārī bishar-h Šahih al-Bukhārī by Ahmad bn Ali bn Muhammad bn Muhammad bn Hajar al-Asqalānī from Asqalān in Egypt (773-852). This is regarded as the best of all the commentaries.

3.6 His Death

In 250 AH, Imam al-Bukhārī left Nishapur, a city in Khurasān for Bukhārā. He was highly welcomed back home. People rushed to welcome him in a great celebration in which huge tents were pitched and decorations were hung. He was very busy in the city teaching gathering of people the ideals of Islam, especially in relation to the traditions of the Prophet (ﷺ). One day, the people of Samarqand sent a message for him asking him to come to their city. He agreed and packed his belongings with great joy. But Imam could not get to the city before he fell ill. He eventually died in a city called Khartank on the first of Shawwal, 256 A. H. at the age of 62. He was buried in Khartank, a village not too far from Samarkand. May Allah have mercy on his soul (Amen).

CONCLUSION

Imam Bukhārī has been shown as one of the great collectors of Hadīth. His collection of Hadīth is called: Al-Jami’u Al-Sahih Al-Musnad Al-Mukhtaṣar Min Umur Rasuli Lah Salla Allahu Alaihi Wa Sallam Wa Sunanihi wa Ayyamihi. (Authentic and comprehensive traditions on the matters of the prophet peace and blessing of Allah be upon him and his traditions and his lives).

Due to the significance of the work, Islamic Scholars regard Bukhārī as the leader and master of Islamic scholars of Hadīth. The work was the first compilation of authentic traditions of the prophet. Some scholars have also contributed to the quality of Bukhārī’s work by either summarizing or writing commentary on it.
5.0 SUMMARY

He is Muhammad ibn Isma’il ibn Mughirah ibn Bardazibah al-Ja’fi. He is not only one of the six major collectors of Hadīth, he is also considered the leader or master all scholars of Hadīth. He was born in Shawwal 194 A.H and died in the same month, 256 A.H at the age of 62.

Imam Bukhārī started memorization of prophetic traditions at the age of ten. He travelled extensively to various places in search of Prophetic traditions (AHadīth). He travelled to Hijāz, Syria, Egypt, Başrah, Kufah and Baghdad to seek knowledge. He met more than one thousand teachers and professors of Islamic sciences whom he benefited from. He also became teacher to many pupils.

The great Imam was reported to have gathered 600,000 Hadīths out of which he selected only 7,257. He documented the Hadīths in a book named: al-Jāmi’u ṣ-Ṣahīh. The book is considered by the Muslim majority as the most authentic book after the holy Qur’ān.

1.0 INTRODUCTION

Imam Muslim was one of the erudite scholars of Hadīth literature. He spent most of his life learning, compiling, teaching and transmitting Hadīths. In this unit, we shall study a brief history of his life and assess his contribution to the Hadīth.

2.0 OBJECTIVES

It is hoped that at the end of this unit, you should be able to:

- Give full name, lineage and parentage of Imam Muslim
- Relate Imam Muslim’s early childhood and travelling in pursuit of knowledge
- Mention the teachers and students of Imam Muslim
- Discuss the contribution of Imam Muslim to Hadīth literature
- Review the book Ṣahīḥ Muslim and its Commentaries
3.0 MAIN CONTENT

3.1 Imam Muslim’s Full Name, Birth and Parentage:

He was Abul Hussain Şakhru’d-Dīn Muslim bn al-Hajjāj al-Qushayrī al-Nishabūrī popularly known as Imam Muslim.

Imam Muslim, as his nisbah (lineage) shows, belonged to the Qushayr tribe of Arabia, an offshoot of the great clan of Rabī’ā. He was born at Nishapur, one of the best cities of Khurāsān in Persia in the year 202 A.H/817 C.E. His forefathers were said to have occupied important positions during the time of the orthodox Caliphs. His parents were very religious and his father, al-Hajjāj, was reported to have been a renowned scholar of Hadīth during his life time. As such, Imam Muslim, who was also a contemporary of Imam Bukhārī, was brought up in an atmosphere of piety.

Self – Assessment Exercise
Give full name, lineage and parentage of Imam Muslim.

3.2 Early Child-Hood and Travelling in Pursuit of Knowledge

Imam Muslim grew up as a saint of high caliber. His excellent moral character could be judged by the single fact that he never indulged in backbiting which has almost become the part of all human beings. He never told a lie or used offensive words. He spent his whole life on the path of righteousness and as a God-fearing person. He was blessed with a very good retentive memory. He started his education under his parent and in his birthplace which, at that time, had not only become a center of religion and knowledge but also had great scholars of high repute like Muhammad ibn Yahya al-Duhlī and Imam Ishāq ibn Rāhawayh. It should be remembered that Imam Bukhārī also visited and stayed in the city. As it was the custom of that period, he started learning the holy Qur’ān with Arabic literature and grammar before beginning the study of Hadīth. He was said to have memorized the whole Qur’ān at the age of twelve.

After he had explored several avenues of knowledge, especially knowledge of Hadīth in his native land, Imam Muslim travelled to many other places with the aim of learning and collecting the traditions of the Prophet (ﷺ). He travelled to places like Hijāz, Egypt, Syria, Yemen, Iraq and Baghdad. He was said to have visited Baghdad many times and that his last visit was two years before his death. He also had the opportunity of delivering lectures in many of the places he visited. He helped immensely in the discussion of Hadīth and collected a great number of Hadīth from the scholars of Hadīth in the places he visited.

When he finished his studies in the various centers of learning, he settled down at Nishapur where he later came in contact with Imam Bukhārī. He was so much impressed by Bukhārī’s vast knowledge and the insight he possessed on the subject of Hadīth that he kept himself attached to him till the death of the former. He could be said to be a true disciple of Imam Bukhārī. He devoted his rest of life in the service of Hadīth. He wrote many books and treatises on Hadīth and other related subject but his most famous and important work is the al-Musnad al-Ṣahīh which contains authentic collections of Prophet Muhammad’s traditions.

Self Assessment Exercise

Relate Imam Muslim’s early child-hood life and travelling in pursuit of knowledge.

3.3 His Teachers and Pupils

Imam Muslim studied under many Islamic scholars of his locale. He also visited many other places to drink from water of knowledge from the great scholars in them. Among those he learnt from are:

- Imam Bukhārī
- Imam Ishaq bn Rāhawayh
- Imam Ubaydullah al-Qawārīrī
- Imam Shu‘bah bn Yūnus
- Imam Abdullah bn Salam
- Imam Ahmad bn Hanbal
- Imam Yahya ibn Ma‘īn
Imam Qutaibah ibn Sa‘īd
Imam Ali bn Hujair Sa‘dī
Imam Mahmud bn Ghaylān al-Marwazī
Imam Abdullah bn Abdu ‘r Rahmān al-Dārimī
Imam Abi Kurayb Muhammad

Also, many students benefited from Imam Muslim. His students spread all over different localities where they became prominence in the realm of Hadīth. His students include:

- Imam al-Tirmidhī
- Imam Abu Hātim al-Rāzī
- Imam Abubakr ibn Khuzaimah
- Imam Yahya bn Sa‘īd
- Imam Muhammad bn Makhlad
- Imam Abu Amr al-Khaffāt

3.4 His Works

Imam Muslim was a prolific writer. He authored many works on the science of Hadīth and other fields of Islamic studies. His works include:

- Awhām al-Muhadīthīn
- Al-Asmā wa ‘l-Kunya
As said earlier, the most celebrated and important book written by Imam Muslim is known as: al-Musnad A`ṣ-Ṣahīḥ al-Mukhtaṣar mina `ṣ-Sunnah (a compilation of prophetic traditions). Imam Muslim gathered 300,000 out of which he found only 9,200 to be authentic. One great feature of this book of Hadīth is that it contains only traditions of the Prophet which are free from defects and unanimously accepted by great scholars of Hadīth. It took him fifteen years to complete the compilation. After the compilation he presented the work to Abu Zurā‘ah for his perusal. Abu Zurā‘ah raised objection on some Hadīth and Muslim omitted them without argument. It was the desire of Imam Muslim to present authentic traditions of the prophet to the Muslims Ummah. Therefore he recorded only those Hadīth he considered valid among other scholars. This could be deduced from his introduction in the work that he recorded only what was unanimously accepted as authentic.
Imam Muslim’s work is ranked next to Šahīh al-Bukhārī, though Šahīh Muslim was argued by many scholars to be superior to Šahīh al-Bukhārī, in the details of its arrangement. Šahīh Muslim, was arranged according to the transmitters not according to the subject matters. A reasonable number of scholars like al-Nawawī and Jalālu `d-Dīn al-Suyūtī have written commentary on Šahīh Muslim.

Self – Assessment Exercise

Write a brief review of Šahīh Muslim

3.6 Commentaries on the Šahīh Muslim

Due to the reputation of Šahīh Muslim as a highly authentic Hadith collection, several erudite Muslim scholars wrote commentaries on the work. A forerunner of such writers as Imam Yahya a`n-Nasāī whose biography and Commentary on the Šahīh Muslim has been presented in Module 3 Unit 10. 3.

It has to be noted that Imam al-Nawawi was not the only scholar that wrote commentary on Šahīh Muslim. It is claimed that there are more than 70 commentaries on Šahīh Muslim as there are several commentators on the work. Other commentators include:

Abu Amr Ibn Salah

An erudite scholar who commented on Šahīh Muslim was Abu ʿAmr Uthmān ibn Abdu `r- Rahmān Ṣalahuddīn al-Kurḍī al-Shahrazūrī. He is popularly known as Ibn Ṣalāh. Born 577 A.H. (1181 C.E) in Sharazor which is presently a part of eastern Iraq. Ibn Salah started his education with his father who was also an Islamic specialist. He also travelled to many other countries and center of learning to study under different religious scholars. He was said to have travelled to places like Mosul, Baghdad, Hadedan, Naisaphur, Merv, Damascus, Allepo and Harran to acquire knowledge.

He soon became a great scholar of Tafsīr and Hadīth. Although, he was well grounded in a variety of discipline, he was most recognized for his contribution to the field of Hadīth. He taught the subject and other more at Ṣalahiyyah School in Jerusalem and Rāhawayh School in Damascus. Scholars like Ibn Khallikān described him as: `Exemplary scholar of Quranic exegesis, Hadīth and Jurisprudence`. He was said to have died in Damascus in 643 A.H. (1245 C.E).
His book of commentary on Şahīḥ Muslim is one of the great works which is best known for. The title of the book is Siyānah Şahīḥ Muslim. This book is explanation of the Şahīḥ Muslim. Siyānah Şahīḥ Muslim is referred to by Yahyah al-Nawawi in his own explanation or commentary. Unfortunately, only the beginning section of Siyānah Şahīḥ Muslim has been published.

Muhammad Taqī Usmānī

Justice (Retired) Allama Mufti Uthmani also authored a commentary work on Şahīḥ Muslim known as Takmilat Fath al-Mufhim. He is an Islamic scholar from Pakistan. He was born in Deoband, India in 1362 A.H. (1943 C.E.) and started his early education from his father, the late Grand Mufti of Pakistan. He later received his Takhassus degree which is equivalent to PhD in Islamic education from Dāru ’l-Ulūm, Karachi, in 1961; Master’s degree in Arabic literature in Punjab University and a bachelor of Laws (LLB) degree from Karachi University. He served as a judge of the Federal Shariah Court of Pakistan from 1980 to 1982. He also served as a judge on the Shariah appellate Bench of the Supreme Court of Pakistan from 1982 to 2002. He wrote numerous books and articles on vital Islamic topics in Arabic, Urdu and English.

In recognition of Uthmani’s achievement in Islamic finance, he was given an award by the United Arab Emirates Vice-President and Prime minister, Muhammad ibn Rasheed al-Makhtoum during the annual International Islamic Finance Forum (IIFF) in Dubai in 2004. He is a member of different national and international organizations. He is one of the leading scholars living in our contemporary period. He is an expert in the field of Hadīth and other Islamic studies.

The Takmilat Fath al-Mulhim is regarded as one of the best commentary on Şahīḥ Muslim. This work is arguably Shaykh Taqi Usmani’s most important book in Arabic. The august work which is in six volumes is considered the completed versions of Fath al-Mufhim fi Sharh Sahih al-Muslim started by Imam Shabbir Ahmad Uthmani.

Although, scholars like Imam Muhammad Zahid al-Kawthari regarded Shabir Uthmani’s incomplete commentary as a good commentary on Şahīḥ Muslim. A great number of scholars including Sayyid Abul Hassan Ali Nadwi acknowledged that Taqi Uthmani’s Takmilah is far better. This book of commentary explains the Hadith in the Şahih and in relation to that deals with numerous contemporary and modern issues with great mastery and authority.

Abdul Hamid Siddique
Mention could also be made of the Summarized Sahih Muslim which is the English translation of Şahih Muslim by Abdul Hamid Siddique. This summarized version eliminates unnecessary repetitions, though many authors argue that the summarized form is stilted and contains scattered errors. There are extensive footnotes which are majorly useful.

3.6 His Death
Imam Muslim left this world on 25th Rajab, 261 A.H/875 C.E at the age of 59 years. Some reports hold that he died at the age of 55 or 57. He was buried at Nasirabad, a suburb of Nishapur.

4.0 CONCLUSION
The greatest contribution of Imam Muslim to the science of Hadith was his collection and compilation of his work popularly known as Şahih Muslim or al-Musnad a’ş-Şahih. It took him fifteen years to complete the compilation and it contains 9,200 Hadiths. Prominent scholars of Islam agreed that Şahih Muslim is the most authentic work of Hadith next to Şahih al-Bukhārī. Any Hadith that Muslim and Bukhārī agreed on its authenticity in their works is regarded as the most authentic Hadith among others.
5.0 SUMMARY

He was Şakhrū’-d-Dīn Muslim bn al-Hajjāj al-Qushayrī al-Nishabūrī popularly known as Imam Muslim. His nickname is Abu ʿl Hussain. He was a pious person from religious parents. He never indulged in backbiting. He had good retentive memory. He was one of the leaders of Hadīth transmitters and collectors. He was born in Nishapur in 202 A.H. and died 261 A.H. He travelled to Hijaz, Egypt, Syria, Iraq and other places in search of knowledge. He died in Nishapur. His popular work is Şahīḥ Muslim. It consists of 9,200 Hadīths and it took him fifteen years to complete the compilation. Şahīḥ Muslim is regarded by scholars of Hadīth as the most authentic compilations of Hadīth next to Şahīḥ al-Bukhārī. Many scholars of Islamic studies have written commentary on Şahīḥ Muslim.

1.0 INTRODUCTION

Abu Dawud was one of the leading scholars in the science of Hadīth. He is considered next in superiority to Imam Bukhārī and Muslim in the collection and compilation of authentic traditions of the Prophet (ﷺ). In this study, we shall study his biography and assess his contribution to Hadīth literature.

2.0 OBJECTIVES

At the end of this unit, you should be able to:

➢ Relate Imam Abu Daud’s Full Name, Birth and Growth
➢ Discuss education career, teachers and students of Abu Dawud
➢ Review the work and Sunan of Abu Dawud and its Commentaries
3.0 MAIN CONTENTS

3.1 Imam Abu Dawud’s Full Name, Birth and Growth

His real name is Abu Dawud Sulaymān bn Ash’aṭh bn Ishāq bn Bashīr bn Shaddād bn Umar bn Imrān al-Azdī al-Sijistānī.

He was born in 202 A.H / 817 C.E in the province of Sijistan, a famous city in Khurāsān. He belonged to the Arab tribe Azd. He lived during the time when the Muslim world was full of eminent scholars. Although he was born in Sijistan, he spent greater part of his life at Baṣrāh which was a great center of learning at that time. He was blessed with an exceptional mind. He had to read a book only once to commit its entire content to memory. He was also a religious and pious man. He lived an ascetic who devoted most of his time to worship and remembrance of Allah. He kept away from men of rank, Sultans and the likes.

He started his early education in his home town, Sajastan, and traveled out later on in search of Islamic sciences and Arabic literature. Some of the places he stayed during his studies include: ray, Harat, Kufah, Baghdād, Turasu, Dimash as Egypt and Basrah. He also visited Iraq, Syria, and Hijāz. He benefited greatly from the Muslim scholars of the places he visited.

Scholars are unanimous about his great ability, trustworthiness and accuracy. He was not only a good narrator of Ḥadīth, he was also a good lawyer.

He was well versed in the criticism of Ḥadīth and an expert in distinguishing sound Ḥadīths from the weak ones.

3.2 His Educational Career, Teachers and Pupils

Imam Abu Dawud started learning Ḥadīth while he was less than 20 years old. He was one of the most widely travelled scholars of Ḥadīth. He went to Hijaz, Isfahan, Iraq, Damascus, Khurasan, Egypt, Basrah, Syria, Nishapur, for the sole purpose of collecting Ḥadīths. His collections based majorly on legal aspects of Islam because of the fact that his primary area of study was law (Fiqh). He gained high and wide reputation in his life time.

Imam Abu Daud was said to have heard Hadīth from 300 personalities. Some of his teachers were:

- Imam Ahmad bn Hanbal
- Abdullahi ibn Maslama
- Musa bn Isma’ila-Tabriu
- Abu Amru Al-Dariri
- Muslim bn Ibrahim
- Abdullah bn Raja’a bn Sa’īd
- Uthman bn Abu Shaybah
- Ibrahim bn Musa al-Farāu
- Ishaq bn Rāhawayh
- Abu Thawr
- Yahya bn Ma`īn

Imam Abu Dawud also benefited many students of Hadīth. His students include:

- Abu `Isa al-Tirmidhī
- Imam Muslim
- Abu Abdurrahim al-Nasā’ī
- Abubakar bn Abi Dawud ‘Uwaynah
- Abu Bashar
- al-Dūlabī

Self – Assessment Exercise

Discuss the educational career of Imam Abu Dawud and enumerate his teachers and students.
3.3 His Works

Likewise, Imam Abu Dawud contributed immensely to the development of Islamic learning, through teaching and writing. He wrote many works and on different aspects of Islamic sciences. Some of them are:

- Kitābu ‘s-Ṣunan
- Kitābu ‘l-Qadar
- Kitābu Nāsikh wa al-Mansūkh
- Kitābu al-Masā’il
- Kitābu al-Zuhd
- Kitābu al-Duā
- Kitābu Ibtida’ al-wahy
- Kitābu Akhbāru l-khawārij
- Kitāb fadā ‘ilu ‘l-A’māl
- Musnad Malik

3.4 The Sunan of Abu Dawud and its Commentaries

Imam Abu Dawud contributed to the development of the science of Hadīth through writing, teaching and transmission. He wrote many works on the science of Hadīth. However, his most famous work in this field was Sunan Abu Dawud. It contains traditions on Islamic law and other sciences. This work is regarded as the first work on Hadīth which contains traditions on juristic rules and regulations of rituals and personal transactions. He completed the work at Baghdad in 241 A. H.

Imam Abu Daud was very careful when compiling his Sunan. He selected only 4800 Hadīths out of 500,000 traditions he collected and examined. He arranged them into various books which he subdivided into chapters. He gave his sources and stated various versions of the traditions, their relative values and defect(s) if any. The book of Hadīth was presented to his teacher, Imam Ahmad ibn Hanbali after completion. Imam Ahmad ibn Hanbali was so pleased with the book.
He also included in his Sunan not genuine traditions but the weak and the doubtful ones as well. He also commented on them as being weak or unauthentic. To Imam Abu Dawud, a weak tradition is better than personal opinions of the scholars.

The Sunan of Abu Dawud is recognized as one of the six authentic collections of Hadīth. Prominent Scholars commended the methodology of Abu Dawud in compiling his Sunan. In this regard Imam Ibn al-Arabi: said “If a person has no book of knowledge except the Holy Qurʾān and this book, Sunan Abu Dawud, he will not need anything else beside them in his learning``

Sunan Abu Dawud was compiled during his stay in Tarsus for twenty years.

Some Commentary works of Scholars on the Sunan Abu Dawud are:

1. Maālim al-Sunan by the polymath Abu Sulayman Ahmad bn Ibrahīm bn Khatab al-Bustī d. 388 AH. In his concise work the author comments on vocabularies and language. He verified reports, deduced legal in junctions and conduct. It is published and in circulation.

2. ‘Awnu ‘l-Mabūd ala Sunan Abu Dawud authored by Shaykh Muhammad Ashraf bn Ali Haydar as_Siddīqī, died in the 14th century AH. He restricted his comments on elucidation of some Arabic dialects and ambiguous expressions. He avoided verbosity and observed brevity when giving preference to an Hadīth upon another . He mentions the proofs of schools of laws only when necessary. Printed in India in four big volumes.

3. Al-Manhal al-Adhb al-Mawrud Sharh Sunan Abu Dawud authord by Shaykh Mahmud bn Muhammad bn Khattāb as-Sabkī. This is a comprehensive work, and explanation of vocabularies in which the author shows his interest in explanation of biography of Traditionailsts. He elucidates the meaning and judgement and teachings derivable from the Hadīths. He mentions others who recorded the Hadīths aside himself. He groups the Hadīths into authentic, sound and weak. He died before completing the work year 1352 AH. It is printed.

4. Abridgements and Revisions of the Sunan Abu Dawud:
   Imam Abdu ‘l-Azīm bn Abdu ‘l-Qawī al-Mundharī , author of At-Targhib wa ‘t-Tarhib (d.656 H.). Al-Mundhari mentions all the five Imams who agree with Imam Abu Dawud in authenticating each of the Hadīths in the collection as well as explaining reasons underlying the Hadīths. The Abridgement thus comes out as excellent work.
(ii) A revision and commentary on the Abridgement has also been written by Imam Muh. Ibn al-Qayyim al-Jawziyyah d. 751. He added some circumstances underlying some Hadīths on which Al-Mundharī kept quiet or which he mentions incomplete, authenticating some which he did not; spoke on texts which still remain ambiguous; sometime writes extensively in the interest of readers in the Imams well-known characteristic manner. The Abridgement and its revision have been published in one volume.

3.7 His Death
Imam Abu Dawud died at Başrah on Friday in the month of Shawwal 275 A.H at the age of 73.

4.0 CONCLUSION
This unit portrayed Imam Abu Dawud as a giant in the field of Hadīth. He was the leader of Hadīth scholars during his life time. Scholars of Hadīth such as Tirmidhī, Nasāī, Abu Awnah and Bashar al-Dūlabī transmitted the Sunan from him. Even his teacher, Ibn Hanbal wrote about him. His major contribution to the science of Hadīth was his Sunan which contains 4,800 Hadīth selected from the 500,000 he collected.

5.0 SUMMARY
Abu Dawud Sulayman ibn Al-Ash’ath bn Ishaq Al-Azdī As-Sijistānī, was the eminent Imam of Hadīth. He was born in 202 A.H. He studied Hadīths under Imam Ahmad b. Hanbal along with Al-Bukhārī and taught many of the later scholars of Hadīth like Tirmidhī and Nasāī.
Though Abu Dawud collected 500,000 Hadīths he compiled 4,800 only in his book entitled Sunan. He taught the book in Baghdad and other major cities at that time. He died at Baṣrah on Friday in the month of Shawwal 275 A.H.

1.0 INTRODUCTION

Imam Tirmidhī was one of the prominent scholars of the science of Hadīth. His work is regarded as one of the six authentic collections of Hadīth. In this unit we shall know the profile of Tirmidhi and analyse his contribution to Hadīth collection and transmission.

2.0 OBJECTIVES

It is hoped that by the end of this unit, students should be able to:

- The profile of Imam Tirmidhī
- The contribution of Tirmidhi to Hadīth collection and transmission
- Highlight the Contents of Sunan ʻt-Tirmidhī
- Review some commentaries written on the Sunan ʻt-Tirmidhī
3.0 MAIN CONTENT

3.1 The full name of Imam al-Tirmidhī and early education.

His real name is Abu Isa, Muhammad b. Isa b. Sawra b. Shaddād. The nisbah Tirmidhī connects him with Tirmidh, a place on the upper Amu Darya.

Imam Tirmidhī was born in Dhul Hijjah 209 A.H in one of the villages called Bihra. Between this village and the city of Tirmidh is about 10 kilometers distance. He was of the tribe of Ghaylān. His descendants settled in Buga during the regime of a ruler called al-Laythī bn Sayar from the tribe of Salim.

On his early life, very little is known, however, it is said he was born blind while other sources said that he lost his eye sight in his later years.

He traveled widely to Islamic centers in search of knowledge; he went to Khurasan, Iraq and Hijāz in order to collect traditions.

Self Assessment Exercise

Give the profile of Imam Tirmidhī.

3.2 His writings.

Imam Tirmidhī was a prolific writer, not only in the science of Hadīth but also in other fields of Islam knowledge. The title of some of his scholarly works includes:

- Kitāb al-Hali al-Sughra
- Kitāb a `t-Tabaqātu wa `t-Tārīkh
- Kitāb a`sh – Shama`ilu al – Muhammadiyyah
- Kitāb al-Hali al-Kubra
- Kitābu `t-Tafsīr
- Kitābu `tā – Tārīkh
- Kitābu `l-Asmā`u wa al-Kunya
3.3 Contribution to Hadīth collection and compilation

Imam Tirmidhī traveled to various places in search of knowledge of Hadīth science. He stayed with prominent scholars of Hadīth in his time. Among the scholars he benefited from were Imam Bukhārī, Imam Muslim, Imam Abu Daud, A’s-Sijistānī, Qutaybah bn Sa‘īd, Muhammad bn Bashar, Ishaq bn Musa and Sufyān bn Wakī‘. He also met Imam Nasā‘ī Ibn Mājāh Muhammad al-Mathlan, Ziyad b. Yahya, Abubakar b. Abdul Azim and studied from them.

Imam Tirmidhī was endowed with good character, retentive memory and piety. He was a man of integrity who combined search of knowledge with fear of Allah. As a result of that he was highly respected not only by his students but also by his teachers. Imam Bukhārī said to him once: “what I benefited from you is greater than what you benefited from me.”

Many students transmitted from him. Prominent among them are: al-Haytham bn Kulayb, al-Shāshī, Makhlūb, Fadl, Muhammad Mahbūb al-Mahbūbī al-Mazrū‘ī who was the transmitter of his major work on Hadīth compilation know as Sunan.

Self – Assessment Exercise

Discuss the contribution of Tirmidhī to Hadīth collection and transmission.

3.4 The Sunan a‘t- Tirmidhī

The Sunan a‘t- Tirmidhī is the major work on which the fame of the Imam rests in the science of Hadīth. It is also called al-Jāmi‘u ‘t-Tirmidhī. The work deals with matters of religious observance, law, and personal relationship with God and fellow human beings.

This work bears the title of Şahīh in the edition printed in Cairo in 1292, but elsewhere it is only called al-Jāmi‘u

A glance at the list of chapters in the work shows that nearly one half of it is devoted to such subjects as dogmatic theology, popular beliefs, devotion, manners, education and hagiology.
The work contains far fewer traditions than that of Bukhārī or Muslim but also less repetition; two of the chapters are particularly extensive. They are manāqib (Hagiology) and Tafsir al-Qur’ān (Exegesis of the Qur’ān). It contains 4,000 Hadīths. Traditions

Tirmidhi’s work is distinguished by two features; the critical remarks concerning the Isnads (chains of trasmission) and the points of difference between the madhḥabs which follow every tradition. On account of the latter feature Tirmidhi’s collection may be called the oldest work on ikhtilāf that has come down to us. In this method, he tried to mention the degree of reliability of each narrator and identify the names and the titles after which he gives his opinions about the quality of Tradition in point whether it is authentic (Ṣahīḥ) good (Hasan) or weak (Daīf). He also mentioned the opinion of early Jurists, lawyers and Imams concerning the subject.

Self – Assessment Exercise

Highlight the Contents of Sunan ʿt-Tirmidhī.

3.5 The Commentaries on the Sunan ʿt-Tirmidhī

Scholars who wrote commentaries on Sunan ʿt-Tirmidhī included:

(i) Imam Abubakr, Muhammad Abdullah al-Ishbīlī known as Ibn al-Arabi (d.543) in Fez. He entitled his work: Hārithatu ʿl-Ahwāzī fī Sharh at-Tirmidhī. He spoke in it on Men, Chains and the Strange/Extraneous. He also spoke on variety of grammar, creed, rules, conducts and public interest (maṣāliḥ). He excelled in reconciling views and proofs; most especially, the school of thought of his teacher; all are with strong evidence, and brilliant explanation in eloquent Arabic with particular reference to Ibn Arabī. Printed in Egypt..

(ii)Suyūṭī d. 911. Qūṭu ʿl Muğtadhī alā ʿJāmiu Tirmidhī. Prelude consists of place of a ʿJāmiu in Hadīth collection, terminologies, concise work, based on printed in India. Some other commentaries have either remained in manuscripts of non extant or perished during fitan/ insurrection.

Self Assessment Exercise

Evaluate two commentaries written on the Sunan ʿt-Tirmidhī
His Death: Imam Tirmidhī died at one of the boroughs of Tirmidhī circa 270/275 A.H

4.0 CONCLUSION

Muhammad bn Sawra a`t-Tirmidhī authored one of the canonical collections of Prophet Muhammad’s Traditions whose authenticity is acknowledged in the Islamic circles having traveled widely to Khurāsan Iraq and Hijāz in order for the purpose.

Teachers: Among his masters were Imams Ibn Hanbal, al-Bukhārī and a`s-Sijistānī.

Writings: Two of his works have been published. His collection of Traditions and his Shamā’il a collection of traditions concerning the person and the character of Prophet Muhammad. He had other works on various Islamic studies ascribed to him.

His collection of Hadiths bears the title of Şahīh in the edition printed in cairo, 1292; elsewhere it is called Jāmi‘u

A glance at the list of chapters shows that nearly one half of the work is devoted to such subjects as dogmatic theology, education and hagiology.

The work contains far fewer traditions than those of Bukhārī, or Muslim but also repetitions, two of the chapters are particularly extensive; they are manāqib and Tafsīr.

Though traditions showing a predilection for Ali are not rare, those which favour Abu Barkr, Umar and Uthman are not lacking.

Tirmidhī’s work is distinguished by two features: the critical remarks concerning the Isnad’s (chain of transmission) and the point of difference between the Madhhabs which follow every tradition on account of the latter feature Tirmidhī’s Jāmi‘u may be called the oldest work on Ikhtilāfāt that has come down to us.

5.0 SUMMARY

3.0 MAIN CONTENT

3.1 Imam a`n-Nasāī `s Full Name, Linage and Early Life

His name was Ahmad ibn Shuayb ibn Ali ibn Sinān ibn Abu Abdu`r-Rahmān a`n-Nasāī

He was born in Nasā, a village in Khurāsan in Iraq in the year 215 A.H. He was a man of humility and piety. He respected learners and had love for knowledge and wisdom. He was also trustworthy and hardworking in addition to possessing retentive memory. These qualities assisted him greatly in his task of Hadīth collection and transmission. It was said that he fasted every other day like the one described in the Hadīth as fasting of Dawud.

3.2 His Education and Travelling

Imam a`n-Nasāī started his learning at an early age of his life in his home town. He studied Arabic literature first, followed by the recitation of the Glorious Qurʾān. He travelled for the sake of knowledge at the age of fifteen. He travelled to Khurāsan, Iraq Hijaz, Syria, Jazirah, Egypt, Kufah and Damascus. He later decided to settle in Egypt. He became so popular in Egypt due to his educating lectures, especially on Hadīths. He narrated Hadīths to the extent that he became famous by the title Hāfizu `l Hadīth. Many people, including scholars would attend his gatherings to benefit from him.

3.3 His Teachers and Pupils

Imam benefited from eminent scholars of Islam. Prominent among his teachers were:

- Imam Qutaybah
- Ibn Sa’īd
- Imam Al-Bukhārī
- Imam Muslim
- Imam Abu Daud
- Imam Suwayd
- Ibn Nasā
- Muhammad bn Nadar
- Al-Marzuqī
- Imam Muhammad bn Ghaylān
- Imam Al-Tarmidhi
- Ishaq bn Rahawayh
- Qatadah bn Sād

Several students of ‘ilm also benefited from the knowledge of Imam Al-Nasa’I. His students include:

- Imam Abu Qāsim al-Tabarānī
- Imam Abu Ja‘far al-Tahāwī
- Imam Abu Bakr Ahmed bn Muhammad known as ibn ٔس-Sunni
- Shaykh Ali ibn Tahāwī

3.4 His works

Imam A`n-Nasāī was an erudite scholar and prolific writer in Islamic Sciences. He left many beneficial works. Unfortunately, many of the works were lost or not published. His work entitled al-Mujtabā was one of his scholarly works he extracted from his Al-Sunan Al-Kubra. His works include:

- Sunan al-Kubra
- Sunan al-Sughrā / Sunan al-Nasāī
- Amalu `l-Yawm wa `l-Laylah
Self Assessment Exercise

3.5 The Sunan a`n-Nasāḥī

Al-Mujtabā was one of his scholarly works he extracted from his A`s-Sunan Al-Kubrā. When he first compiled A`s-Sunan Al-Kubrā and forwarded it to the governor of Ramla, the governor asked if all the Hadīth therein were Ṣaḥīḥ, which he replied in the negative. Thus, the governor requested that he compiled another book and in which he should gather Ahādīth Ṣaḥīḥah only. Then, A`n-Nasāḥī compiled A`s-Sunan Aṣ-Ṣugrā which he later called al-Mujtabā. The Mujtabā (Carefully chosen) is what is known as Sunan al-Nasāḥī. This is the magnum opus of Imam Nasāḥī. The work is being taught around the world and it has the virtue of being recognized as one of the Kutub `s-Siḥāḥ `s- Sittah (the six canonical books of Hadīth).

A glimpse at the scholarly work shows that the author was a traditionalist (Muhadīth) who possessed a great deal of knowledge in the area of Islamic science. He was a traditionalist, a commentor on the Qur`ān and a first class Jurist. He was one of the leading scholars of Hadīth collection and transmission. He contributed immensely to the development of Hadīth literature through teaching, writing, collection and transmission.

This work is recognized by Hadīth scholars as one of the six authentic collections of Hadīth. The book comprises of 5,761 traditions. In this book, the author followed the footstep of Imam Bukhārī and Muslim. Majorly, the Hadīths in the book are authentic. Where there is a weak tradition, he clearly clarifies the weakness. Some set of scholars regard Mujtabā the third authentic book of Hadīth after Ṣahīḥ Bukhārī and Ṣahīḥ Muslim.

3.6 Commentary works on the Sunan aʾn-Nasāʾī

Imam Suyūṭī (d. 911) stated in his introduction to his commentary on the Sunan aʾn-Nasāʾī: This my commentary on the Sunan of Abu Abduʾr-Rahmān an-Nasāʾī is similar to my commentary on the Sahīhayn, Sunan Abu Dawud or Jāmiʿu Tirmidhī. However

The most important commentary works the Sunan aʾn-Nasāʾī are:

(i) Jalalu Din as-Suyūṭiʾs commentary which is a fine and concise work. It is more of remarks than full commentaries. It is entitled Zahru Ruba alaʾl-Mujtabā. In it he ascertained names of reporters; explained strange vocabularies and points out extraneous reports. He mentioned some judgements and lessons derivable from the Hadīths. It is an invaluable commentary inspite of its brevity.

(ii) Muhammad bn Abduʾl-Hādī al-Ḥanafīʾs Commentary popularly called as-Sindī, resident in Madina, d.1138. He says in his commentary: This is a fine commentary on the Sunan aʾn-Nasāʾī, exclusively on the need of the learner and the teacher concerning correct meaning, elucidation of strange vocabularies and linguistic analysis. It is broader than Suyutis commentaries. He made salient points in it.

These two commentaries have been published in Egypt and India. The Egyptian edition contains texts of the work. The two are printed in one volume. The year of publication is 1312.

(iii) Shaykh Sirāju Dīn Umar bn Ali nicknamed ash-Shāfīʾ, d.804 AH. It consists of comments on the addendums to the Ṣahīhayn, Abu Dawud and Tirmidhī in one volume.

3.2 The Sunan Ibn Mājah and Its Commentaries

Ibn Mājah authored many books in the science of Hadīth. However his most popular work in this field is: Sunan Ibn Mājah. It contains 4,341 Hadīth. Five scholars of Hadīth before him reported 3002 before Ibn Mājah recorded them. Ibn Mājah added 1,339 to the number. The addendum of Ibn Mājah are known as Zawā`id Ibn Mājah.

Sunan Ibn Mājah is the sixth in series of the Hadīth collection according to Tāhir al-Makaddasi and others. However, some scholars are of the view that Kitābu `d-Dārimī is the sixth while others regarded Muwatta Malik as the sixth.

Ibn Athīr commended the collection of ibn Mājah by saying “A usual book, very much useful in jurisprudence though there are many weak Hadīths in it” However, Imam Dhahabi noted that the weak tradition in Ibn Mājah are not many.

Sunan Ibn Mājah consists of 32 books in 1,500 chapters. Among the traditions collected 428 are authentic (Ṣahīḥ), 199 are good (Hassan) 613, are weak (Daʿīf) while 99 are doubtful or forged (Munkar of Makdhūb). Though the work contains some weak Hadīths yet it is generally accepted by many scholars of Hadīth as one of the sixth authentic books of Hadīth.

Commentaries on His Sunan.

The most prominent commentaries on the Sunan Ibn Mājah are written by:

(i) Imam Jalalu Dīn as- Suyūtī (d. 911 AH.). He entitled his work Misbāhu `z-Zujājah `alā Sunan Ibn Mājah. He adopts the same methodology he used in his commentary on the other Sound Collection works i.e. brevity and restriction to main points.

(ii) Shaykh Sindī al-Madanī d. 1138 AH.: concise, providing important points; printed on the margin of the texts.

1.0 INTRODUCTION

Imam Malik was the first Islamic scholar who collected the Hadīths of the Prophet Muhammad (ṣ) and compiled them into a book. In this unit we shall acquaint you with his biography, and contribution to Hadīth literature.

2.0 OBJECTIVES

At the end of this unit you should be able to

- Give a profile the personality of Imam Malik Ibn Anas
- Discuss his career as an Hadith Collector and Scholar
- Analyze his work on Hadīth which is popularly known as Muwatta

3.0 MAIN CONTENT

3.1 Imam Mālik’s Full Name, Birth, Search for Knowledge and Writings

He is Malik bn Anas bn Abī ‘Āmir. He is related to Ahl Asbahī which was under the leader of Yemen. His nickname is Abu Abdullah.
The dates given for his birth vary between 90 A.H. and 97 A.H. He was said to have stayed in his mother’s womb for two or three years before he was born. He spent most part of his life in Madinah.

His search for Knowledge

Very little is known about his studies. He was said to have studied Traditions with the celebrated scholar in Madina popularly called Rabiatu ‘ra’y for cultivating use of personal opinion. Rabiah b. Farukh died in 132 A.H).

Some other prominent scholars he transmitted traditions from include: al-Zuhri, Nāfiu mawlā Ibn Umar, Abu Zinad, Hāshim bn Urwa, Yahya bn Sa‘ad, Abdulllah bn Dinār, Muhammad b. Munkadir and Abu Zubayr. A’s-Suyūtī also gives a list of 95 Shaykhs of Imam Malik.

His Writings

It is doubtful whether Imam Malik composed other works besides the Muwatta. However, some sources attributed to him other works such as a’l-Tafsīr; Risālah fi ’l-Qadar wa ’r-Radd ‘ala ’l-Qadariyyah, and Kitāb a’n-Nujūm.

Self Assessment Exercise

Give a profile of Imam Mālik.

3.2 The Muwatta and its Contents

The major work of Imam Malik on Hadīth is Muwatta. Imam Mālik spent more than forty years in compiling the Muwatta. After the compilation he presented it to seventy jurists among the jurist of Madinah for their comments. Due to its significance, the Caliph of the period intended to compel people to its usage but Imam Mālik refused.
The contents of Muwatta

The Muwatta of Imam Malik consists of 100,000 Ahādīth. More than one thousand students of Hadīths reported the Hadīths in the Muwatta from the author. That was why there were differences in the copies. Thirty transmitters were not popular. However twenty were well known. But the most popular transmitter was Yahya b. Yahya Al-Laythī Al-Andalusī al-Masmidī.

There are different classes of Hadīths in the Muwatta. According to some review

Imam Malik’s great work is to give a survey of law and justice, ritual and practice of Islam according to the Ijma‘ of the people of Madinah.

During the Abbasid period, there was a practical interest in setting out a “road map” or smooth path which is the meaning of Muwatta through the far reaching differences of opinion available then”. The most elementary questions Mālik wished to help this interest on the basis of the practice in Hijaz and to codify and systematize the customary law of Madīnah custom which he interprets from the point of view of practice. The Muwatta thus represents the earliest stage of literary development which was common to both Fiqh and Hadīth. The success of the Muwatta is due to the fact that it always takes an average view on disputed point.

Self Assessment Exercise
Assess the Muwatta of Imam Mālik.

3.4 His Death
He died in Madinah in 179 A.H. at the age of 85 after a brief illness. He was buried at Al-Bakī‘i. The Governor, Abdullahi b. Zaynab conducted his funeral service. An elegy on him by Ja’afar b. Ahmad al-Sarraj is given in Ibn Khallikan. The qubbah (dome) over his grave was destroyed by the Wahhābis.
4.0 CONCLUSION

Imam Malik was one of the prominent scholars of fiqh (Jurisprudence) and Hadīth (traditions of the Prophet). He was the founder of one of the four orthodeox schools of law. He was born at Madinah in 94 A.H. He lived in the same place and received his early education of Islam from Sahl b. Sa’d, a survivor of the companions of the prophet. He was considered to be the most learned man of his time; and his self denial and abstinence were such that he usually fasted four days in the week. He enjoyed the advantages of a personal acquaintance and familiar intercourse with Imam Abu Hanīfah although differing from him on many important questions regarding the authority of the traditions. With regard to the Traditions, his authority is generally quoted as decisive. Among his works, the only one record is one of traditions which is known as the Muwatta. His Principal Students was Imam Al-Shafi‘ī who afterwards founded a school of law. He died in 179 A.H. at Madinah and was buried there.

5.0 SUMMARY
Imam Malik b. Anas was a great scholar of Islamic jurisprudence and prophetic traditions. He lived between 93 A.H. to 179 A.H. His intellectual contribution to Hadith Literature was his work titled Muwatta.

3.1 The Full Name, early Life and character of Imam Yahya A`n-Nawawī

His Birth and Character

Imam was born in October 631 A.H. (about 1255 CE) in Nawa, South of Damascus, in the suburb city of Howran. His father who was a pious and virtuous man enrolled him in Madrasa al-Rawahiya in Damascus in 649 A.H. The young al-Nawawī, initially, wanted to study medicine but later changed his mind and went for Islamic studies.

He learnt the Qur‘ān by heart and also studied several books on Islamic jurisprudence in his early years. He was courageous, obedient, trustworthy, pious and hardworking. He considered trading such as buying and selling of books as his source of livelihood.

Imam al- Nawawī earned the respect of people, especially the learned and the elite of his locale right from his childhood due to his fear of God, piety, power of knowledge and excellent character. He used simple dress and ate simple food. He enjoyed religious engagement than pursuing worldly things. Commenting on him, the celebrated Shaykh Muhyiddin said: “Imam a`n-Nawawī had three distinctive commendable qualities in his person. If anybody has only one out of these three, people will turn to him in abundance for guidance. First, having knowledge and its dissemination; second, evading completely from the worldly inclinations and third, inviting to all that is good and forbidding al-Munkar”.

✓ Tahrīr ʿtanbīh

Self – Assessment Exercise

Provide evidence of his being an erudite scholar.
3.5 His Commentary on Ṣahīḥ Muslim

Imam Nawawī was a prominent scholar in the field of Hadīth. He retained his high reputation to the present day in the field of Hadīth. He had an exceptional knowledge of Hadīths and adopted even stricter standards than many others in its criticism. For example he admitted only five collections of Hadīth as authentic and put Sunan Ibn Mājah on the same level with the Musnad of Ahmad ibn Hanbal. Furthermore, in spite of his fondness for Muslim he gave a higher place to Bukhārī. Among his major contributions to Hadīth Literature are his works known as: Arbaun Hadīth, Riyad al-Salihin, Al-Adhkar and Sharh Sahih Muslim.

More importantly, Imam’s Sharh Muslim is a book of commentary on one of the six major collections of Hadīth, Ṣahīḥ Muslim. Although, popularly known as Sharh Ṣahīḥ Muslim, the full name of the book of commentary is known as al-Minhaj bi Sharh Sahih Muslim. It is a 5 volume book printed in Cairo in 1283. In the introduction of the work, Imam al-Nawawi gives a sketch of the science of Tradition.

Generally, the Imam describes the isnād, (i.e., Chain of Narration), then explains the meanings of words and phrases in the Hadīth. The observations on the Isnads and the grammatical explanation of the traditions are made to verify the authenticity of the Hadīth and to clarify the real message in it in the Ṣahīḥ Muslim. He gives commentary from the theological and legal aspect to buttress and strengthen the subject matter. Quotations were also made when necessary from, not only the founders of the principal Islamic schools of thought, but also older jurists like Azā‘ī, ‘Atā’ etc. Imam Nawawī also puts heading in Muslim’s work.

Greater passentage of scholars of Hadīth consider this work the best commentaries on Ṣahīḥ Muslim. Nawawi’s commentary of Ṣahīḥ Muslim is brief, which may be the reason it is preferred by some Islamic scholars and leaners. Researches has even also shown that this book of commentary is preferred by many universities for their curriculum despite the fact that Imam Ibn Hajar’s commentary of Ṣahīḥ al-Bukhārī, the most important book of Hadīth, is regarded by the majority as the best commentary ever written on any book of Hadīth.
Self – Assessment Exercise
Evaluate his book of commentary on Şāhīh Muslim

3.6 His Death
Imam Yahya a’n-Nawawī returned to his hometown when he was about 45 years old. Shortly after his arrival at Nawaa, he fell ill and died. He died in the night of Wednesday 24th Rajab 676 A.H. at the age of 45.

3.7 Comparison beteen Sharḥ Şahīh al-Bukhārī and Sharḥ Şahīh Muslim
Even though Ibn Hajar Asqalānī’s commentary on Şāhīh Bukhārī and al-Nawawī’s commentary on Şāhīh Muslim are highly valued by Muslims, it is undisputable that both invaluable works have many things in difference. Apart from the fact that the authors are different, the approaches to the works are also different in many ways. Comparing the methodology of the two, the following points can be inferred:

- Ibn Hajar elaborated on details of the Hadīth, much like an encyclopaedia but Imam al-Nawawī was concise.
- When defining terms in the Hadīth, Ibn Hajar would elaborate on the language used but Nawawī would define the meaning of selected vocabulary.
- Ibn Hajar would mention all existing narrations of the Hadīth but Nawawī would not generally include other narrations.
- Ibn Hajar referred to fiqh derived from the Hadīth with quotations from various scholars of different schools of Islam while Imam Nawawī would usually quote from scholars who had written commentaries on Muslim such as al-Qādī Iyād, al-Maddrūī and al-Khatīb.
- Both would mention the various benefits to be deduced from the Hadīth but Ibn Hajar would do so on a larger scale than Nawawī.
- At the end, Nawawi’s commentary leaves the reader with a clear understanding of the Hadīth and Ibn Hajar’s commentary leaves the reader with a comprehensive understanding of the Hadīth and all that relates to it from the other books of Hadīth.

4.0 CONCLUSION

In this unit, we have studied the life and contribution of Imam Yahya a`n-Nawawī to Hadīth literature. He was portrayed as a great commentator of Hadīth. His Sharh Sahih Muslim which is a book of commentary on Sahih Muslim is an excellent and magnificent work of commentary. He had a great reputation as a scholar and a Jurist of a high rank. We have also established in this unit that are many other commentators on Ṣahīḥ Muslim.

5.0 SUMMARY

Muhyiddin Abu Zakariyya Al-Nawawi was born in Nawa 631 A.H. and died in 676 A.H. in the same place at the age of 45 years. He was a great jurist of the Shafi’I school of law and a prominent scholar of Hadīth. He authored a wonderful work of commentary on Ṣahīḥ Muslim. The book of commentary which is known as Sharh Sahih Muslim is considered as the leading commentary on Ṣahīḥ Muslim. Some other scholars of Hadīth also commented on Ṣahīḥ Muslim.

3.0 MAIN CONTENT

3.1 Full name, Birth, Teachers and Students of al-Suyūṭī

He is Abdu `r-Rahmān bn al-Kamal Abi-Bakr bn Muḥammad bn Sābiq b. Hammam al-Khudayr, al-Asyūṭī a`sh-Shāfi`ī. His nickname is Jalālu `d-Dīn. He is also called Abu `Faḍl which was given to him by his teacher Al-Kinānī Al-Hanbalī. His grandfather was of Persian origin while his mother was Turkish. Suyūṭī’s father was a Qāḍī in Asyut and author of books on Arabic language and linguistics.

Birth

Imam Suyūṭī was born in the year 849 A.H. in the city of Asyūṭ in Egypt, a city known for its beauty, pleasant surroundings and abundant provisions. Suyuti’s father died when he was five years old; but by that age he had memorized the Qur’ān to Sūratu `t-Tahrīm. He finished the memorization of the complete Qur’ān before he reached the age of eight.

Teachers and Students

Imam Suyūṭī was endowed with great interest in seeking knowledge right from his childhood. He was taught by Shaykh Kamalu `d-Dīn bn Haramayn with love and affection and was raised like a son by him. He also studied various branches of Arabic and Islamic studies under the guidance of the eminent ‘ulamā’ of his time. Prominent among them were Shaykh Shihābu `d-Dīn, Shaykh al-Islam Al-Balqānī, Sharafu `d-Dīn al-Manāwī, Imam Taqiyyu `d-Dīn al-Shiblī al-Hanafī, Muḥy `d-Dīn al-Khafājī and several others among the jurists of his time.

Imam Suyūṭī was so unusually gifted with intelligence and retentive memory that he was able to memorize vast texts and became an authority in many sciences of both Arabic and Islamic studies. Students came from many parts of the Muslim world flooding his residence seeking for knowledge. As a result of that his, fame spread to many places. Though Suyuti was himself an authority in Arabic language and literature, he pursued excellence in various fields of Islamic studies with vigour. He travelled widely in search for knowledge and observe the bounties and signs of Allah to mankind. The places he travelled to include Hijāz, Syria, India and West Africa Countries.

3.2 His Writings

Imam Suyūtī devoted most of his time to reading and writings. One of his students said “I know a’s-Suyūtī as an author of three works in a day in addition to other educational activities”.

It is claimed that Imam Suyūtī authored more than 500 works. Some of these works are commentaries and summaries of important Islamic manuals. Thus, there is little wonder that the works of A`s-Suyūtī are found in many parts of the Muslim world today. Students as well as learned men have busied themselves studying his scholarly works and when Imam Suyūtī’s works are critically studied interesting conclusions are arrived at.

Imam Suyūtī wrote on Islamic history, Arabic literature, Qur’ān Exegesis, ‘Ulūm al-Qur’ān, and the sciences of Arabic language. Notable among his scholarly works are:

2. Tabaqāt al-Hufāz
3. Tabaqāt al-Mufasirīn
4. Tabaqāt al-Nahwiyīn wa ‘l-Lughawiyīn
5. Tārikh al-Khulafā’
6. Muntahā al-uqūl fi Muntahā `n-Nuqūl
7. Lubbābu ‘l-Lubbāb fi Tahrīr al-As-hāb
8. Al-Muz-hir
9. Al-Ash-bāh wa `n-Nazā’ir
10. Jam-‘u ‘l-Jawāmi’ `fī `n-Nahl
11. Al-Itqān fi ‘Ulūm al-Qur’ān
From the aforementioned works we can perceive the erudition of Imam Suyūṭī as an authority in the fields of the twin disciplines of Arabic and Islamic studies.

Self Assessment Exercise

Discuss Jalālū ‘d-Dīn a’s-Suyūṭī as a prolific scholar.

3.3 His Contribution to Hadīth Literature

Imam Jalālū ‘d-Dīn Suyūṭī was a great scholar of Hadīth. Indeed, he was regarded as the most learned scholar of his time in Prophetic traditions and in the science of Hadīth and its transmitters. Furthermore, Suyūṭī reported that he memorized more than 200,000 Hadīths and he was ready to memorize more whenever he came across them. Simultaneously, Imam Suyūṭī acknowledged with humility in his autobiography Husnu ‘l-Muhādrah that he was blessed with knowledge in seven sciences; namely Tafsīr (exegesis), Hadīth (Prophetic traditions), fiqh (jurisprudence), Nahw (grammar), al-ma’ānī (Semantics) al-Bayān (exposition) He is known to have excelled even his teachers.

Imam Suyūṭī wrote more than one hundred works in the science of Hadīth only some of which he mentioned in his autobiographical work entitled Husnu ‘l-Muhādrah fi Akhbār Miṣr wa ‘l-Qāhirah. The theme of these works is collections of Hadīth, criticism of scholars of Hadīth, the status of some Hadīths and other aspects of the science of Hadīth.

Imam Suyūṭī has almost one hundred and eighty works on Hadīths. Notable among his works in the field of Hadīth include:

i. Dhayl Tabaqāt al-Huffāz: It is a summary of a work authored by al-Dhahabī (d. 748 A.H) titled Tabaqat al-Huffāz. Suyūṭī added some Huffāz (memorisers) of Hadīth and scholar of Usūl. He arranged the stages of the Huffāz and made them 24. He started with the Companions of the Prophet (ﷺ) and ended with Al-Hāfiz bn Hajar al-Asqalānī (d.853 A.H.).

ii. Al-la’ālī al-Masnu ‘ah fi al-Ahadīth al-Mawdū‘ah

This is an import work which outlines the Hadīths forged by fabricators. Though some scholars of Hadīths such as Abu ’l-Faraj al-Jawzī and Ibn Ṣalāh compiled similar work on fabricated Hadiths that of Suyūṭī has been more comprehensive on the subject matter.

iii Tadrību ʿr-Rāwī fi Sharḥ Taqrīb aʿn-Nawawī

This book deals with the principles of Hadiths and measurement to distinguish the classes of Hadiths from each other. It states the conditions of authentic, good, weak and other categories of Hadith.

iv al-Tashrīh ʿalā ḵ-Lāmiʿ aʾṣ-Ṣahīḥ:

A commentary on the authentic compilations of Bukhārī, Musnad Ahmad b. Hanbal, Ṣahīḥ Muslim, Ibn Mājah and others.

v. Jamʿu ḵ-Lawāmiʿ fi ḵ-L-Sunnah

It is a comprehensive work on Hadiths that contain different classes of it. It is recognized by Islamic scholars as a major contribution to Hadith literature and a revival of Islamic legacy of great importance. It was published by Majmaʿ al-Buhūth by the order of Shaykh of al-Azhar University, in Cairo, Dr. Abdul Halim Mahmud.

vi. Miftāḥ al-Jannah fi ḵ-L-Iḥtijāj bi Sunnah

This is a book on the significance of Hadith, a very useful and comprehensive handbook for students and teachers of Hadith. It condemns in totality those who regarded the Glorious Qurʾān as the sole source of Islamic law and nothing else.

It is pertinent to note that Imam Suyūṭī was said to have memorized 200,000 Hadiths. Some scholars said 300,000 and he was quoted to have said; “If I have opportunity to come across others beside them I should have memorized them.” Therefore he intended to document all the Hadiths he had memorized and entitle it Jamʿu ʿL-Jawāmiʿ but he died before then.

He is Imam al-Ḥāfīz Ibn Hajar al-Askalānī, Abu ‘l-Fadl, Shihābuddīn, Ahmad bn Muhammad bn Muhammad bn Ahmad Al-Kinānī, Al-Shāfi‘ī.

Birth and Education

Ibn Hajar al-Askalānī was born on 10th Sha‘bān, 773 A.H. in Egypt and he grew up there. He memorized the Qur‘ān at the age of nine years and also memorized al-Hāwī, the Mukhtāṣar of Ibn Hājib, and other books. He travelled to Makka and listened to the teaching of its ‘Ulamā’. Having admired the science of Hadīth, he strived to acquire its knowledge from the prominent Shuyūkh in places like Hijaz, Egypt and Shām. Many eminent Shuykhs of his time approved his knowledge and allowed him to give lectures and religious verdicts.

Teachers

Ibn Hajar learnt from many prominent teachers like:

- Al-‘Izz bn Jamā‘a from whom he learnt the two primary sources of Islamic law (Qur‘ān and Hadīth).
- Al-Majd al-Fayrūzabādī from whom he learnt the Arabic language.
- Al-Amān from whom he learnt the Arabic Grammar.
- Al-Badr Al-Mushtakī from whom he learnt Literature and Poetry from Him also he recited some parts of the Qur‘ān in all the seven styles of recitation.

3.2 His Works

Ibn Hajar al-Asqalānī was said to have authored more than 150 books, most of them being on Hadīth which was a major study flourishing during his life time. Most of the works of Ibn Hajar are on the science of Hadīth. Some of his works are:

- Fath al-Bārī
- Al-Isābah fi Tamyīz aʿṣ-Ṣaḥābah (A comprehensive dictionary of the Companions)
- Al-Durar al-Kāminah
- Tahdīb al-Tahdīb

3.3 His Commentary on Ṣaḥīḥ al-Bukhārī

Out of the books written by ibn Hajar on Hadīths, the most notable is Fatḥu l-Bārī fi Sharh Sahih al-Bukhārī which is commoly known as Fathu al-Bari. It is a book of commentary on Ṣaḥīḥ al-Bukhārī. The author was said to have started the commentary in 817 A.H. and completed it in Rajab 842 A.H. It shows that it took the author 25 years to complete the work. After the completion of the commentary, he held a party on which he spent 500 Dinar. Some of the kings that graced the occasion requested for the copy and paid 300 Dinar for it.

The great book of commentary on the greatest compilation of Hadīth, was recognized by scholars of Hadīth as one of the scholarly works on the work Ṣaḥīḥ al-Bukhārī. Commenting on the book, Abdul Hakim Murad, in the introduction to the translation of ibn Hajar al-Asqalānī’s commentary on selected Hadīth published by the Muslim Academic Trust, said: ```The importance of this literature may be gauged by the fact that at least seventy full commentaries have been written on Imam Bukhārī’s great work, Ṣaḥīḥ al-Bukhārī the most celebrated of which is without question the magnificent Fat-hu ’l-Bārī (Victory of the Creator) by Imam Ibn Hajar al-Asqalānī.

Ibn Hajar’s explanation is very thorough and detailed. It is a 15 volumes book in which the author commented on every Hadīth in Ṣaḥīḥ al-Bukhārī. Often, while expounding upon the meaning of a particular Hadīth, he brings other narrations to explain it. He classified some Hadīths into weak and gave extensive proof on the weakness. He also gave extensive discussion regarding the situations of different narrators, grammar and morphology. Fat-hu ’l-Bārī is an excellent and vast explanation of Ṣaḥīḥ al-Bukhārī in a beautifully bound set. It is indeed a magnificent commentary.

The book of commentary was at the peak of its category. It is well treasured for its complete coverage of Bukhārī’s material, its mastery of the relevant Arabic sciences, the wisdom showed in drawing lessons from Hadīth and how it resolved complex problem over variant readings.

3.4 His Death

Ibn Hajar Al-Asqalānī died after ‘Ishā prayer on Saturday, 8th Dhul-Hijjah 852 A.H. May Allah reward him abundantly.

3.5 Other Commentators on Sahih al-Bukhārī

It is noteworthy that the Ṣaḥīḥ al-Bukhārī has been commented on by many scholars of Hadīth, apart from Imam Asqalānī. Though the exact number of the commentator could not be ascertained, it is posited by many scholars that there are more than seventy commentaries on book. This could be confirmed in the statement of Abdul Hakim Murad: ‘‘The importance of this literature (Imam Bukhārī) may be gauged by the fact that at least seventy full commentaries have been written on the great Ṣaḥīḥ Bukhārī ‘‘. Some of them are:

4.0 CONCLUSION

In this unit, we have reviewed the life of one of the great commentators of Hadīth, Ibn Hajar al-Asqalānī. It is established that Ibn Hajar al-Asqalānī was a Muhaddith (Scholar of Hadīth) of great repute. His book of commentary on Şahīḥ al-Bukhārī, which was considered the greatest commentary so far on the subject, is also reviewed. It is also being revealed that not only Ibn Hajar, but more than 70 other scholars commented on Şahīḥ al-Bukhārī.

5.0 SUMMARY

Ibn Hajar al-Asqalānī (773 A. H. – 852 A. H.) was a great scholar of Hadīth. He compiled several works of Hadīth and wrote commentary on others. Notable among his works is Fath al-Bārī fi sharḥ Şahīḥ al-Bukhārī which is a book of commentary on Şahīḥ al-Bukhārī. While majority of Islamic scholars hold the book in high esteem, it is ascertained that there are more than 70 books of commentary on the work.

1.0 INTRODUCTION

Shaykh Muhammad Nāsiruddīn al-Albānī was one of the prominent scholars of Islam who contributed in no small measure to the science of Hadīth in this era. His life, works and dedication to Islamic ideals are models to present day students and teachers of Islamic studies. We hereby acquaint you with his brief life history and contribution to the study and criticism of Hadīth.

2.0 OBJECTIVES

At the end of this unit, students should be able to:

➢ Outline the full name, birth and educational career of Shaykh Albānī
➢ Enumerate the writings of Shaykh Albānī with an appraisal of some of them
➢ evaluate the contribution of Shaykh Albani to Hadīth literature

3.0 MAIN CONTENT

3.1 Full Name, Birth and Educational career of Albānī

He is A’sh-Shaykh al-Muhadīth Muhammad Nāsiru ’d-Dīn bn Nuh Najātī bn Adam. His Kunyah (nickname) is Abu Abdu ’r-Rahmān taken after his eldest son. He was also called Al-Arnūṭī, a name given to those who were immigrants of Syria, and Askodari a place of his birth and al-Dimashqī, his place of residence, and al-Albānī his Country of Origin Albania in Europe.

His Birth and Growth

He was born in the year 1332 A.H. (1914) in the town of Ashkhodera, which was the capital city of Albānī at the time. He lived in the town for about 9 years in a poor family.

Albānī’s father was one of the scholars of his town and a Hanafī jurist having graduated from the institute of Sharī‘ah in Istanbul, Turkey. He returned home to be the muftī of Albānī, taught his people the tenets of their faith and call to the religion of Islam.

Shaykh Albānī was a brilliant student to the extent that one would be amazed of his brilliance and retentive memory.

As a growing young boy he learnt carpentry and later the art of horology (watch repairing) this was what the Shaykh did for living and he retained his shop until his death.

His Educational Career.

Shaykh Albānī attended a Madrasah (elementary school) called Jam-‘iyatu Is‘āf al-khariyyah at the age of nine. It was there he had his early education in Arabic and Islamic studies. As Shaykh Albānī himself narrated his teacher made him interested and impressed him so much to critically study all the Ḥadīths in Iḥyā ‘Ulūm ‘d-Dīn.

Shaykh Albānī also used to attend discussions on Ḥadīth with some scholars like the great historian and Muḥadīth of Halab, Shayikh Muhammad Rāghib a’t-Tabakī, when Shaykh saw the dexterity of this young Albānī he gave him an Ijāzā (certificate or licence) to narrate knowledge from him.

Shaykh Albānī spent most part of his time in the study of the books of Ḥadīth most especially the manuscripts of the Zāhirīyyah library. He made the visitation of the library a daily routine such that he usually spent between six and eight hours depending on the variations in weather between summer and winter.

Self – Assessment Exercise

Outline full name, birth and educational career of Shaykh Albānī.

3.2 His Writings

From the compilations of Samīr bn Amin and Ibrahim bn Muhammad al-Aliyy, Shaykh Albānī was said to have authored two hundred and twenty one titles with some of the books being up to 40 volumes and a good number of them being usually more than three volumes.

Some of his writing which rely fully on authentic Ahādīth of the Prophet (ﷺ) on subjects of jurisprudence rank among the best materials ever gathered on those subjects and is far away from blind followship of madhhab. Some of these books are:-

- Šifatu Šalatu n-Nabiyy
- Ahkāmu `l-Janā’iz
- Hajjatun n-Nabiyy
- Qiyāmu Ramadān wa `t-Tarāwīh
- Tamāmu `l-Minah fi ta’līq `alā fiqh `s-Sunnah.
- Adabu `z-Zīfāf
- Tamamu `n-Nuṣḥ fi Aḥkam al-Mash
- A`th-Thamar al-Mustahab fī Fiqh `s-Sunnah wa `l-Kitāb

3.5 His Contributions to the science of Hadīth

Shaykh Albānī authoured many books and edited several others. His works are particularly in terms of sound verification of traditions including the use of supporting evidences and a usual follow up with comments of scholars of the past and contemporaries to further establish his judgments.
The Shaykh authoured a work on Hadīth which he entitles: Silsilatu ʿṣ-Ṣahīḥah wa ʿd-Daʾīfah. This work was compiled in line with the methodology of the salaf to purify the religion from innovatory acts of belief, worship and daily transactions.

This would enable teachers, preachers and students to know and avoid such narrations so that they do not attribute to the Prophet (ﷺ) what he did not say or what cannot be established as his statements.

To increase the benefit of the recognition of unestablished traditions, Shaykh Albānī compiled chains of sound Ahādīth and entitled it: Silsilatu ʿṣ-Ṣahīḥah.

The pattern adopted by the Shaykh in the books is to mention the Hadīth, follow up immediately with its rulling (i.e. whether authentic or not), mention the books of compilation of Ahādīth in which it can be found, together with a detailed discussion of its various chains of transmission and the comments of the past scholars and the present ones on the Hadīth.

Silsilatu Daʾīfah is in 14 large volums with a total of about 7,000 ṣ and Silsilatu ʿṣ-Ṣahīḥah is in 7 large volumes with a total number of about 3,000 ḥadīths.

Another important contribution of the Shaykh Albānī to the science of Hadīth is his Irwā' al-ghalīl fi takhrīj ahādīth Manār ʿs-Sabīl

It is an outstanding work on the verification of Ḥadīths in Hanbālī book of fiqh called Manāru ʿs-Sabīl with relevant notes on the jurisprudential deductions in the book.

Furthermore, his work Ṣifatu Ṣalat al-Nabiyy was compiled after reading and teaching in the book of prayer” in Aʾt-Targhib wa ʾt-Tarhib of Al-Hāfiẓ al-Mundhirī to students in the year 1286 A.H. (the importance of prayer and the reward awaiting those who perform it properly) informed the compilation of the book.

In addition to writing, the Shaykh had a very good interpersonal relationship with scholars and students of knowledge. He met many of the people of learning and both parties benefited from each other.
Prominent among the scholars he met were Shaykh Ḥāmid, leader of Anṣārū Ḥ-Sunnah in Egypt, Shaykh Abdu ʾl-Razāk Hamā, and ʿAllāmah Mujāhid al-Jawal Taqīyyu ʾd-Dīn.

He also held several meetings with Dr. Yusuf Al-Qardāwī and discussed important issues of knowledge with him sometimes, Dr. Yusuf al-Qardawi met him to verify the authenticity of Hadīths and relying so much on such verifications. Sometimes in some programme he would say: “I have asked concerning the authenticity of this Hadīth from al-Shaykh Muhammad Nāṣiru ʾd-Dīn al-Albānī”.

The leader of the Muslim Brotherhood Shaykh Hasan al-Banna also wrote to Al-Albānī commending his efforts on his commentary and critique on some of the Sharīʿah rulings published in the magazine of Ikhwānu Ḥ-Muslimīn under the column Fiqhu Ḥ-Sunnah written by Shaykh Sayyid Sābiq.
